Germans Reported Evacuating Robot Bomb Coast of France

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 25.—(CP Cable)—The Canadians late today made contact with American forces who are on the Seine at Louviers, south of Rouen. A western Canada armored car regiment made a 20-mile dash from Beaumont on the Risle river and linked up with the Americans at La Haye Malherbe, a small town three miles west of Louviers.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, Aug. 25.—The German armies of northern France were reported in full flight for the Rhineland today, abandoning their Seine river line from Paris to the sea and the robot bomb bases along the channel coast.

With their 7th Army reduced from a first-class fighting machine of some 450,000 men to a disorganized rabble of barely 90,000 in the disastrous battle of Normandy, the Germans appeared to be pulling out of all northern France and moving back for a last ditch fight on the borders of their homeland.

The Nazi 15th army in the Pas De Calais area, stripped of much of its armor and artillery to reinforce the 7th Army, was reported racing headlong toward the Marne river line and the Rhine, under savage attack by swarms of Allied planes.

Simultaneously, four Allied armies crushed in the broken remnants of the enemy's 7th Army below the Seine, converging on the great channel port of Le Havre.

Canadian First Army forces swung eastward along the channel coast to capture Honfleur at the mouth of the Seine and less than five airline miles across the estuary from Le Havre, and head-

MOSCOW, Aug. 25.—Romanian troops, ordered by their King to cease resisting the Red army, were surrendering by the thousands today in the face of a Russian onslaught that already has overrun virtually all Bessarabia and northern Moldavia and carried to within 138 miles of Bucharest.

(A German communique said "parts of Romanian forces" ceased resistance against the Red Army on the Romanian front while German troops "fought their way back" toward the Prut and Seret rivers. Radio Berlin said the Germans were withdrawing from Romania as the front disintegrated.)

Front dispatches indicated that the Romanian Army had collapsed completely as the 2nd and 3rd Soviet Ukrainian armies, advancing up to 28 miles in 24 hours, rolled to within 40 miles or less of the Galati Gap in Southern Romania and 118 miles to the great oil centre of Ploesti.

(Soviet troops advanced 37 miles last night and now are approaching

Union Nationale Candidate Wins

LA MALBAIE, Que., Aug. 25—(CP)—Election of Union Nationale candidate Dr. Arthur Leclerc in the deferred by-election in Quebec's Charlevoix-Saguenay riding was conceded by the returning officer last night, an hour after polls had closed.

Election of Dr. Leclerc was conceded by Returning Officer L. P. Dufour after less than half the 125 polls of the far-flung riding had reported. By that time, Dr. Leclerc had piled up a lead of more than 4,000 votes over Independent Donalt Lacroix, his only opponent.

Election of Dr. Leclerc gives the Union Nationale party of Maurie Duplessis 48 seats in the 91-seat legislature. Liberals gained 37 in the general elections of August 8, the Bloc Populaire four and the CCF and Nationalist one each.

Control Charges

Sask. Planning Crop Failure Debt Protection

REGINA, Aug. 25.—(CP)—Incorporation of a crop failure clause in Saskatchewan debt legislation is under consideration by the provincial government and Attorney General J. W. Corman Thursday indicated that at the coming session of the tenth legislature early in October, such a provision would be submitted to the house for enactment.

The attorney general pointed out that such a clause was not a new idea as the federal government was considering such a clause in its land agreements under the Soldier Settlement Act.

The provision which the CCF government in Saskatchewan was considering placing on the statute books would ensure that the amount of the mortgage would not be raised by interest or any other charges during the year of the crop failure. It would be designed to prevent further accumulation of debt by the farmers, said Mr. Corman.

$360,000,000 DEBT

During the week ending Aug. 14, applications were made to commence 43 foreclosure actions. Reported farm debt in Saskatchewan amounted to $310,000,000 with an estimated $50,000,000 unreported or a total of $360,000,000. Of the total acreage operated in the province

Seventh Loan Goal May Be Increased

OTTAWA, Aug. 25—(CP)—Possibility the government may raise the objective for the forthcoming Victory Loan above the figure of $1,200,000,000 at which it has stood for the last two loans is seen here.

The sixth Victory loan in May yielded close to $1,400,000,000, and in his budget speech Finance Minister Ilsley placed the government's borrowing requirements for the present fiscal year at $3,200,000,000, which leaves $1,800,000,000 still to be raised.

The sale of war savings certificates yielded about $47,000,000 last year and will probably bring in about the same amount this year. The sale of Victory bonds is the government's other chosen method of raising funds.

It can also borrow by the sale of short-term securities to banks and other financial institutions which have available funds but it prefers to borrow from the public through the sale of bonds.

Plans now are being made for the Seventh Victory Loan, which will probably be offered in October, and were discussed at a meeting of the national war finance committee this week.

Drew Again Urges Liquor Ration End

TORONTO, Aug. 25. — (CP) — Premier Drew announced yesterday he has made another request to the Federal government to rescind the order-in-council which restricts sale of spirits to 70 per cent. of the amount in the year ended Oct. 31, 1942.

"I have pointed out to the Dominion government on more than one occasion the need of similar action, but added weight has been given to my arguments by a request just received from a member of the Dominion government that Ontario authorities increase the ration to one of the large headquarters messes," said a statement issued from the premier's office. "This request from the Dominion government explains that the ration now available is inadequate."

The statement said that conditions in Ontario have "become increasingly serious" as the result of the restrictions. He referred to seizures by police of liquor "bootlegged into this province from the province of Quebec" and deaths in other provinces from the drinking of "alcoholic substitutes described by such names as 'blockbusters' 'torpedo juice' and other similar descriptive names."

Frenchmen Given Part In Governing Liberated Area

LONDON, Aug. 25 — General Dwight D. Eisenhower gave Frenchmen a part in the government of the liberated area of their homeland today under terms of five special agreements with Gen. de Gaulle's French Committee of Liberation.

The arrangements became effective today after an exchange of letters between the Supreme Allied Commander in Europe and Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, leader of de Gaulle's French forces of the interior. Conclusion of the agreements was announced simultaneously here and in Washington.

The terms included an agreement on dissemination of publicity concerning operations in France. This was regarded as a guarantee against repetition of the confusion caused earlier this week by the premature announcement that Paris had been librated.

The other four agreements pertained to:

1. Civil administration and jurisdiction.
2. Disposition of captured war material and property.
3. Distribution of civilian relief supplies.
4. Currency matters.

No details were given, but number four presumably referred to the settlement of problems arising from use of "invasion" bank notes issued to Allied troops sent into France.

The arrangements were described as "essentially temporary and practical in character," and were known to be a direct result of De Gaulle's visit to the United States and the subsequent recognition of his committee of national liberation as the de facto authority in France.

It was emphasized that Eisenhower will retain whatever authority he considers necessary for "unimpeded conduct of military operations." As soon as military operations permit, the French people will be given an opportunity to exercise freely their will in their choice of a government, it was stated.

Nazi Commander Surrenders To Allies; Report Romania Declares War on Germany

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(BUP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle has arrived in Paris, Radio Paris said today.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Paris was reported firmly in Allied hands tonight, conquered by the overwhelming might of American and French armored forces and a motley street army of hundreds of thousands of Parisian patriots. A secret fighting French radio inside the capital flashed word to the world this afternoon that the commander of the Nazi garrison had surrendered unconditionally, barely 12 hours after Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley ordered his French and American troops into the city.

Allied headquarters, guarding against the possibility of another premature victory announcement such as the French Partisan report of the capital's liberation two days ago, made no official comment pending word from the front. The Paris transmitter said, however, that the capitulation of the enemy garrison with all arms and equipment had been confirmed by Allied commanders in the city.

The Nazi commander, Radio Paris said, surrendered to Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc, commander of the French 2nd armored division, and to the commander of the French forces of the interior, Gen. Joseps Pierre Koenig.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—French armored forces broke the German shell of resistance around Paris today and rushed down the boulevards to join the embattled Maquis in ousting the Germans from their capital.

The people of Paris came rushing into the streets to cheer the big tanks, with grinning French pilots waving from the turrets. The Maquis, battle-weary and bloody from days of uneven battle with the less numerous but better-equipped Nazis, jumped over their street barriers, cheering hoarsely.

Gen. Joseph Pierre LeClerc's armor had arrived none too stoon, for there was evidence of stiff fighting all around us.

ROME, Aug. 25—Allied forces captured the Riviera resort city of Cannes today and were reported battling the Germans only 15 miles below Lyon, big Rhone valley industrial centre, 130 miles inland from the Mediterranean coast.

A British United Press dispatch from Annecy, capital of Haute Savoie province, said an American column was expected there momentarily from Grenoble, 93 miles to the south. Liberated by French Maquis,

LONDON, Aug. 25. — (CP) — The German communique indicated today that a widespread retreat from most of Southern France was in progress up the Rhone valley toward Lyon. Declaring embittered fighting was still going on in Toulon and Marseille, the high command said the defence of coastal points "thus made possible reaching movements of all other formations toward Lyon."

Annecy was draped with Allied flags in anticipation of the arrival.

The fact that the Americans had not yet arrived at Annecy appeared to disprove earlier reports that they already had reached the Swiss border at St. Julien.

The Rome newspaper Il Tempo said an Allied armored column had engaged the Germans 15 miles south of Lyon after an advance from Grenoble, 58 miles to the southeast. French Maquis were said to be in control of Lyon, long a resistance centre, but the Germans appeared to be fighting to prolong the American advance as long as possible.

The fall of Lyon would cut all the main escape routes for German forces remaining in Southwest France and close the gap between the Allied armies in Central and Southern France to 170

LONDON, Aug. 25—Allied armadas totalling about 2,500 war planes flew out from Great Britain and Italy today to attack numerous enemy targets in northern Germany, France and Czechoslovakia in the second consecutive day of the renewed aerial offensive.

More than 1,100 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by approximately 750 Allied fighter planes in nine task forces struck at numerous targets over a 5,000-square mile area in northern Germany, spreading fire and destruction throughout the region.

Another fleet of up to 500 heavy bombers from Italy, escorted by a large force of fighter planes, battered aircraft factories and airdromes in Czechoslavakia, Mitchell bombers struck at targets in southern France.

The Italy-based fleet bombed the airdrome at Prostejov, the Brno-Lisen aircraft factories, and the Kurim engine plant and airdrome just south of Brno. None of the targets previously had been bombed.

May Use Three U.S. Army Huts To Ease Housing

Inspection of United States Army Camp 550, Calder, was made Friday morning by Arthur Arnold, Ottawa, and he will report immediately to Ottawa on the feasibility of using these huts to provide temporary accommodation to relieve the desperate housing situation existing in the city.

Mayor John W. Fry accompanied him on the inspection tour.

Mr. Arnold will open an office here through which the National Housing plan will be administered, and also through which the necessary alterations to huts at Camp 550 will be carried out if it is decided to utilize them to relieve the housing emergency.

He intimated Friday that a survey of properties in Edmonton capable of being converted into three or more housing units would be made, and where owners were willing the changes would be carried out under the National Housing plan.

Loans for building homes and for remodelling of existing dwellings would be available in Alberta, Mr. Arnold stated.

When a suitable location has been obtained for the National Housing administration office a staff of at least six will be employed, he stated.

Nazi Prisoners Placed on Trial For Auto Theft

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Aug. 25—(CP)—Four German prisoners of war who escaped from the Magrath hostel July 12 and fled towards the American border in a stolen automobile went on trial here yesterday on charges of automobile theft. They were charged under the criminal code of Canada.

The men are being tried in Royal Canadian Mounted Police court before Magistrate Arthur Beaumont. They are: Willy Schindler, 26; Walter Brawn, 26; Alfred Muschiol, 23; and Hans George Schulte, 26. Each pleaded not guilty.

CAR ABANDONED

The car, owned by Joseph Jacobs, Magrath farmer, was found abandoned about 20 miles south of the Magrath hostel and the four Germans, all airmen, were recaptured by RCMP near Del Bonita, four miles from the American border, July 13.

About 20 German prisoners of war were brought to the trial. Besides the four accused there were three German captives watching proceedings, and a number who may be called as witnesses.

When the three watching proceedings came into courtroom they turned to Magistrate Beaumont, snapped to attention and gave the Nazi salute. They then sat down and took notes of the evidence.

The accused, two of whom wore Iron Crosses, are being defended by J. S. Mavor of Calgary, appointed by the Swiss consul in Canada, who is the protecting power of prisoners of war.

It was pointed out to the accused men that, despite their prisoner-of-war status, they are subject to the same laws as civilians and must be treated as civilians in this court, insofar as provided by the Geneva convention.

They were told also they would be given a fair trial such as is accorded everyone in the British Empire and that there would be no discrimination because of nationality.

New Discovery

Growth of T.B. Germs Inhibited by Green Mold

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—A green mold which inhibits growth of tuberculosis germs, and which was discovered accidentally in an ice box at the University of Buffalo School of Medicine, was announced in Science, America's official scientific journal today.

The discovery parallels almost to the dot Fleming's discovery of penicillin in England in 1929. The green mold belongs to the penicillin group of fungi, but the stuff it produces that inhibits T.B. germs is not penicillin. Penicillin was a failure on T.B.

The story of the discovery and experiments is reported by D. K. Miller and Albert C. Rekate of the Edward J. Meyer Memorial hospital and department of medicine of the university.

The new green mold was found growing on a culture of tuberculosis germs in the ice box. It was found to grow more luxuriantly on T.B. germs than on any other kind of food which the Buffalo experimenters tried.

That fact was so striking that they next tried the mold's effect on tuberculosis germs given to guinea pigs. Human tuberciosis germs, which cause 100 per cent tuberculosis and death in guinea pigs, were first inoculated with the green mold and allowed to stand in tubes for one or two days.

These mold-treated germs failed in many cases even to give the pigs tuberculosis. Examination of the tubes showed however that the mold did not kill the germs, even after several months. The mold merely inhibited growth.

This is exactly like the action of penicillin and the sulfas, which inhibit growth but don't kill in test tubes.

An even more interesting feat of the new mold is to destroy the potency of tuberculin inside of two hours. This indicates that the mold feeds directly on the poison which tuberculosis germs produce, since that poison is the basis of tuberculin.

miles. The advance already had cut the last railway link between France and Italy.

French forces tightened their ring of encirclement about the doomed German garrison in Toulon, capturing the land arsenal inside the city and the by-passed stronghold of Ollioules, two and a half miles west of Toulon.

ENEMY WRECKS ARSENAL

The Germans were clinging stubbornly to the naval arsenal and two peninsulas which partly landlock the harbor from the southwest and southeast despite a hail of explosives from Allied warships and planes. The enemy presumably has completed his demolitions of Toulon's vital installations.

Other American elements of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, Jr.'s 7th Army pushed 42 miles northwest from liberated Marseille to within eight miles of Arles on the Rhone estuary, 140 miles south of Lyon.

Some street fighting continued in Marseille as French forces mopped up a few scattered enemy pockets of resistance.

Cannes and Grasse, seven and a half miles to the north, fell to the Americans after a week-long siege and extended the Allied bridgehead along the coast another five miles to the east to within 17 miles of Nice and 29 miles of the Italian border.

FAMOUS RESORT

Cannes ranked with Nice and Monte Carlo as a fashionable Riviera resort before the war. A centre for polo, horse racing, yachting, golf, tennis and sea bathing, it had a peacetime population of nearly 50,000.

The world's most fashionable yachts anchored in its basin in other years. The anchorage was reported to have been blown up by the Germans.

Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean, reported in his daily communique that the number of prisoners captured in the nine-day-old invasion had mounted to 20,000.

from several directions. An hour before noon one column was reported to have battled its way into the suburb of Gentilly. Two others were still battling bitter resistance in the outskirts.

TO VERSAILES

Still another column was swinging toward Versailles, which had been by-passed by the first troops, and by noon was reported to have made "some progress" at pushing the Germans out of the city where the treaty ending World War I was drawn.

Large fires burned inside Paris and I was told that they resulted from the fighting between the Germans and the Maquis. Frenchmen said more than 1,000 bodies of patriots littered the streets or hung across barricades where they had been killed after a supposed armistice between the Germans and the French forces of the interior had collapsed.

The French radio said Canadian troops, presumably Quebec units, were in action with LeClerc's armor and other reports from outside Paris listed British troops among the Allied forces moving in to support the patriots in the metropolis.

The German DNB news agency said American troops broke across the Yvette river at two points just south of the capital under cover of an aerial barrage, and asserted that violent fighting was in progress in and around the capital.

GERMANS FLEEING

Between the columns swarming in from the south and French armored forces from the west, the German garrison was being slowly squeezed into the northeastern corner of the city. At many points the Nazis were reported fleeing to escape the Allied tank columns, only to be cut down by French patriots who closed on them from all sides.

LeClerc, legendary French desert warrior, led his 2nd Armored Divison into Paris early today, bringing the first regular army relief to the city's embattled and outmatched partisan army.

Throughout the morning the secret transmitter kept up a running account of the street battle, tracing the progress of the French regulars across the Latin quarter to the Pont St. Michel and on the Ile de la Cite, an island in the river and the heart of Paris, where bitter fighting had been reported raging around the police prefecture. On the north bank of the Siene and a few blocks west is the Louvre and adjoining, the famous Tuileries Gardens.)

PALL OF SMOKE

At many points the Germans put the torch to houses and public buildings before retreating, and the French transmitter said a pall of smoke covered the centre of the capital.

BLOODY FIGHTING

The German DNB news agency said the historic Louvra, treasure house of the world's greatest art, was the scene of bloody fighting and asserted that a force of patriots had seized the building and was holding the wehrmacht at bay with rifle and machine gun fire.

LeClerc's poilus, however, were reported at the St. Michel bridge on the opposite bank of the Seine within 800 yards of the Louvre, moving rapidly to lift the siege.

The first French regulars to break into the city met stiffer opposition than had been expected, and found the streets studded with barricades, demolitions and hundreds of mines. Many of the Nazis surrendered after a brief show of resistance, however, and early reports said the attack was going well.

(The Fighting French radio said LeClerc's troops began crossing the St. Michel bridge at 8:30 this morning after clearing German troops from the Rue St. Jacques on the left bank. The Pont St. Michel runs to the Ile De La Citc, an island in the river and the heart of Paris, where bitter fighting had been reported raging around the police prefecture. On the north bank of the Siene and a few blocks west is the Louvre and adjoining, the famous Tuileries Gardens.)

Nazis Retreating To Gothic Line

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright, 1944, By British United Press

ROME, Aug. 25.—German forces in the area 30 miles west of Florence appeared today to be falling back towards the heavily fortified Gothic line.

Explosions were heard from German positions after British Eighth army troops captured Mount Foresto, six miles southeast of Bibbiena, and Allied officers speculated that the Germans were carrying out extensive demolitions before moving into fortifications 10 miles north of Mount Foresto.

Mount Foresto was taken without an Allied casualty, although 35 Germans were captured and a counter-attack was broken up by artillery. In the upper Arno valley "considerable advances were made" and the villages of Castelnuovo, Forniche and La Montanina were taken, an Allied communique reported.

On the eastern slopes of the Appennines, Italian troops reached the Candiguano river on a broad front and entered the town of Acqualagna, the communique said.

On the Adriatic coast, Polish patrols at two places penetrated 2,000 yards north of the Metauro river. Other patrols ranging on the northern side of the river discovered skillfully laid mine fields.

Romanians Are Surrendering to Russian Forces

Focsani on the western end of Galati gap, the London radio reported today in a broadcast recorded by CBS. Focsani is 43 miles southwest of Barlad, the fall of which was announced by Moscow yesterday, and is less than 100 miles from Bucharest itself.)

(The German Transocean News Agency said Russian troops had reached the Danube river estuary 77 miles due east of Galati, but asserted they were wiped out by fire from Nazi river boats.)

LAST-DITCH STAND

German forces still were offering last-ditch resistance at many points and some engaged in armed clashes with the Romanians, who were surrendering en masse. More than 25,000 prisoners, most of them Romanians, were rounded up yesterday alone.

Dispatches likened the confusion to that prevailing in Italy following Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio's capitulation to the Allies while the Germans still were resisting fiercely in his homeland.

The Soviet foreign commisariat, in the first official Russian statement since King Michael's announcement that Romania had accepted a Soviet armistice offer, warned last night that the Red Army must continue military operations in Romania until German forces there had been destroyed.

"The help of the Romanian Army to troops of the Red Army in the liquidation of German troops is the only means of stopping military operations in Romanian territory and concluding peace negotiations between Romania and the coalition of Allies," the statemept said.

The statement added that the Russians would permit Romanian forces to retain their arms and would assist them if they undertook "hand in hand with the Red Army to wage a war of liberation against the Germans for the independence of Romania, or against the Hungarians for the liberation of Transylvania."

SOVIET PLEDGE

The statement also reiterated the Soviet pledge of last April that Russia had "no intention of acquiring any part whatsoever of Romanian territory, changing the existing social structure of Romania, or by any means infringing on the independence of Romania."

More than 550 towns and villages were swept up by the Soviets in yesterday's drive to within 18 miles of the mouth of the Danube river, including Chicinau, capital of Bessarabia, and a number of other strongholds guarding the outer approaches to Bucharest and Ploesti, the latter Adolf Hitler's last major source of oil.

Chisineau, a city of 112,500 and pre-war Romania's second largest city, fell to a combined assault by the 2nd and 3rd armies, after it had been by-passed and virtually encircled in the early stages of the six-day-old offensive.

Virtually the entire garrison was wiped out in the assault, which crumbled four formidable defence belts around the city.

The Russian 2nd Army also toppled four other enemy fortresses, Roman; 37 miles southwest of Iasi, Bacau, 53 miles southwest of Iasi; Husi, 17 miles west of Vaslui, and Barlad, 58 miles northwest of Galati, 138 miles northeast of Bucharest and 118 miles from Ploesti.

ESCAPE ROUTE SEVERED

The fall of Barlad also severed the last escape route for thousands of enemy troops pocketed in a salient south of Chisinau.

The Warsaw, East Prussian and western Lithuanian fronts remained deadlocked, but Gen. Georgi Zakharov's 2nd White Russian army northeast of Warsaw, gained up to nine miles to capture Bacze-Kokre and Sniadowo.

In southern Estonia, Gen. Ivan I. Maslennikov's 3rd Baltic army captured Torvandi, only two miles from the railway junction of Tartu, and rapidly was clearing the Riga-Tallinn railway between Valga and Tartu.

Raid on Sumatra

NEW YORK, Aug. 25. — (AP) — The Tokyo radio said today a force of 28 carrier-based planes had raided the western coast of Japanese-held Sumatra yesterday morning. An English-language broadcast directed to North America asserted Japanese ground forces had shot down two of the raiders.

Bag 3,641 Planes

LONDON, Aug. 25. — (CP) — Allied airmen since D-Day have destroyed 3,641 German planes in the air and on the ground, a force larger than the whole Nazi air fleet based in western Europe as at June 6. In the same period 2,959 Allied craft were lost.

Romania Has Declared War On Germany

were being withdrawn from Romania, and unconfirmed reports said the wehrmacht also was abandoning Bulgaria.

GOVERNMENT RESHUFFLE

At the same time DNB said a government "reshuffle" was in progress in Hungary, indicating that the hand-picked Nazi cabinet headed by Premier Dome Sztojay, former Hungarian ambassador to Germany, had fallen.

Swiss dispatches yesterday said the Hungarian army already was in revolt and the government shake-up, on which the Germans gave no immediate details, appeared to have been touched off by a peace faction in the army.

MASS DEMONSTRATION

Ankara reports said Sztojay's government had ordered immediate mobilization of the nation's manpower and that street crowds had staged a mass demonstration in protest.

Britain and the United States, meanwhile, were said to be conferring on proposed peace terms to Bulgaria, and Ankara reported that the Bulgarian cabinet had been in continuous session since midnight Thursday.

"The fast-moving situations in Bulgaria, Hungary and Slovakia are are expected to come to a head, possibly within 24 hours, with the collapse of the entire satellite system," British United Press Correspondent Leon Kay reported from Ankara.

The entire Balkans were reported in a turmoil over Germany's setback in Romania and the growing Red Army threat to southeastern Europe. Slovakia was reported to have proclaimed martial law and an underground radio called on the Hungarian army to revolt against the Germans.

Wilfred von Oven, German home service radio commentator, acknowledged in a Berlin broadcast that German troops were pulling out of Romania, where the front was "disintegrating under the impact of troubles and treason."

"We do not want to deny that the treason of the Romanian king and his cliques is causing us some worries and difficulties and will continue to do so until the situation has been secured again by prompt action, as it was in Italy," he said.

UNREST SPREAD

Diplomatic circles in Ankara said Romania's surrender followed the failure of Germany, to promise military help against the Russian offensive. When Premier Marshal Ion Antonescu, since ousted, returned empty-handed from a six-day talk with Adolf Hitler, Ankara said, unrest spread through the army and peace demonstrations broke out in Bucharest.

Faced with military chaos, the army prevailed upon King Michael to seek an armistice, these sources said. Gen. Constantin Sanetescu, the new premier, was identified as a former commander of the 4th Army Corps and among Romania's 20 highest generals.

The Stockholm newspaper Morgontidningen reported under an Ankara date that Romanian troops had attacked German SS forces guarding the Ploesti oil wells and were fighting Hungarian units at Cluj and Maros-Vararhell on the Transylvanian frontier.

(A German broadcast reported by BBC said all postal, telegraph and telephone communications have been suspended between Hungary and Romania.)

FORMAL NEGOTIATIONS

A British United Press Moscow dispatch said Russian and Romanian authorities were believed to have begun formal peace negotiations on the basis of King Michael's announcement that Romania had decided to accept a Soviet armistice offer.

The Red army was continuing its advance through northern Romania toward Bucharest, however, and the Soviet Foreign Commissariat said in its first formal statement on the Romanian situation that military operations would continue until the Germans had been driven from Romanian soil.

Romanian and German troops already were fighting one another in northern Romania, the Soviets said, while other reports reaching London told of street battles in the Black Sea port of Constanta.

Swiss dispatches said Romanian troops were fighting the Hungarians in northern Transylvania, which Michael ordered his forces to restore to Romania. Adolf Hitler gave northern Transylvania to Hungary in 1940.

FATE NOT DISCLOSED

The fate of Marshal Ion Antonescu, ousted by Michael as premier, was not disclosed immediately. The London Daily Mail said he and several members of his deposed government had been arrested in Bucharest, while the Daily Express quoted "unconfirmed Swiss reports" that he had been kidnapped and shot.

Ankara heard that the Slovakian puppet government had ordered martial law throughout the country after failing in an attempt to mobilize workers to build defences in the Tartar Pass through the Carpathian mountains.

Slovakia was said to be seething with discontent, with partisan activity increasing. Russian partisans who filtered through the German lines in Galacia were said to be aiding native patriots.

A Cairo dispatch to the London Daily Express said it had been confirmed there that the Germans had withdrawn all their forces from Bulgaria, apparently leaving the government free to make peace with the Allies.

Bulgaria was understood to have asked for an armistice from the United States and Britain and terms were under consideration in Washington and London. Bulgaria and Russia never have broken relations.

TROOPS PANICKY

Bulgarian occupation forces in Greek Macedonia and Trace were panicky over the possibility of an Allied pincers attack upon them from Romania and the sea, Cairo said.

The Greek exile government in Cairo, as a checkmate to any Bulgarian attempt to retain stolen territory, demanded a guarantee of pre-war frontiers, punishment of Bulgarian rulers and military leaders for atrocities, indemnities for Greek victims and Allied occupation of Bulgaria.

A Captured Nazi General and a Robomb, En Route to Launching

Captured near Brest in France, glum Lieut.-Gen. Karl Spang, 58-year-old commander of the Nazi 266th division, rides in a U.S. tank as he is taken from battle area.

This German picture shows a robomb being wheeled to its launching platform. "A few minutes later," said the German caption, "it was on its way."

Siegfried Line Final Hope

Hitler Is Expected to Stake All On Appeal for Homeland Defence

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The defence system of Hitler's European fortress is crumbling, and with capitulation of satellites in prospect and American armored columns already driving for the German border, the Germans' only hope now is defence of the Reich itself.

While the Germans have their reorganized 15th army on the rocket coast, it has been badly stripped to bolster the 7th army. It is unlikely it would be able to withstand an Allied onslaught. Military men expect Hitler to fight a rearguard action from northern France and lower Belgium to the Siegfried line, then base all on an appeal to the people to defend the homeland.

SEE POSSIBLE COLLAPSE

Many Allied military men are of the opinion one more crushing defeat in battle and the German army—riddled with intrigue and hate—will collapse entirely.

Hitler's defence system was built on the vast territory he dominated in Europe. He planned to trade space for time to wear his enemies down and out.

The force and violence of underground resistance movements, the wavering fair-weather loyalty of his satellites in the east and the uprising by the French Maquis avenging four years of hate and brutality and the lightning Allied advance have given Hitler and the German army no time to establish any sort of defence line.

In the east, Romania—the Balkan weather vane which always first swings to the side most likely to win—has turned from the Nazis. Undoubtedly the Germans will be forced to withdraw from Romania as fast as possible before the onrushing Russian armies catch them in a vast trap. It is inconceivable that Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland will not quickly follow Romania's lead.

QUICKLY LOSE "SPACE"

Their capitudation would force the Nazis from Yugoslavia and Greece. Thus, overnight, Hitler would lose "space" he so sorely needs.

He finds Gen. Alexander headed toward the Austrian border, Gen. Eisenhower on the French border along hundreds of miles of front and the Russians hammering through Czechoslovakia, Poland and East Prussia.

To date there has not been the slightest sign the Germans will be able to mount a defence in northern France capable of halting the British, American and Canadian effort. One month ago Hitler had the Allies hemmed in on a 100-mile front. He was unable to hold it and lost some 30 or 40 divisions in the process.

In a few days the Allied front will stretch from the channel hundreds of miles to the Swiss frontier. It will be supplemented by armies being poured into France at the greatest rate in history.

To hold that line, Hitler will have 30 or less divisions than he had a month ago. Then he can do his retreat into the borders of the Reich. But there is every indication that he lacks the manpower to hold even this point.

Nazis All Gone

No Hits, No Runs, No Errors As Canuck Troops Took Town

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE CANADIANS AT THIBERVILLE, Aug. 25.—(CP)—In the dead of night French Maquis guided a crack central Ontario infantry regiment through rain-sodden fields and along muddy trails to this quaint Norman town and the Canadians took it without a shot being fired.

Thiberville is only 25 miles west of the bend of the Seine at Elbeuf and on the main highway that curves from Lisieux to Paris.

The Canadians expected the Germans would defend it to the last with a suicide garrison and even the Maquis thought so. But in those hours of darkness Wednesday night when the Canadians were descending on the town, the Germans fled deeper into the steadily-compressing pocket west of the Seine.

WELCOMED BY CIVILIANS

Just after dawn yesterday morning the Canadians entered the streets of Thiberville and instead of being met by German machine-gunners were received with the wild acclaim of French civilians.

Hundreds of both men, women and children were waiting on the main square to shower hospitality on the first company. When it was clear there was no enemy in the town, Waters flashed back a wireless message to battalion headquarters saying: "Objective occupied—no runs, no hits, no errors."

I got into Thiberville yesterday in a scout car after moving for hours in a deluge of rain through masses of heavy Canadian army traffic pouring eastward along every road. And every road was another graveyard of German vehicles, guns, tanks, horses and soldiers wiped out by air forces as they tried to get back to the Seine.

Small groups of German tanks are roaming the wooded, hilly countryside and they nip away at anything they can. When Canadian columns were moving up the main road from Orbeck to Thiberville, two tanks and some enemy infantry attacked a western Canada infantry unit.

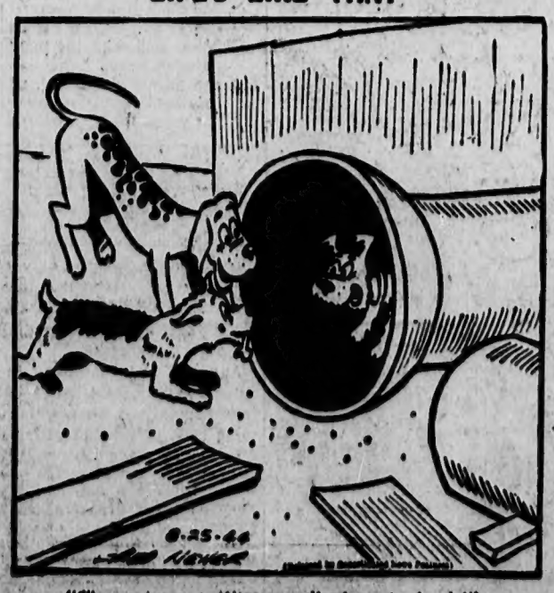

VERMILION SOLDIER

Pte. Herman Meadors, Vermilion, Alta., said the tanks milled around in the darkness trying to scatter the battalion and after some firing slipped away in the darkness, followed by the enemy infantry.

But this sort of opposition is only a minor irritation which does not materially slow the advance and Canadians in the vanguard of the Canadian army are counting the hours until they reach the Seine.

The entire force is in high spirits and the freshly liberated towns are gay with tricolors and bunting.

Germans Yield Under Pressure From Canucks

By WILLIAM STEWART

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, Aug. 25—(CP)—German resistance along the Toques river gave way yesterday before the pressure of 1st Canadian Army troops and general advances were posted along the entire Canadian front.

British airborne troops fighting as infantry swung northeast from their bridgehead north of Port L'Eveque, and reached the outskirts of Criqueboeuf on the estuary of the Seine directly opposite Le Havre and only three miles of Honfleur.

They by-passed Trouville, which now is being mopped up by Belgian troops. Canadian troops meanwhile occupied Thiberville and pressed four miles east in the direction of Brionne, while farther south Canadian infantry and armor were just two miles short of Broglie.

SHARE IN CAPTURE

British armor shares with Canadian troops in the capture of Thiberville, thrusting 11 miles from Lisieux, where only scattered sniper resistance remains.

To the north, Pont Leveque was the scene of bitter fighting and Wednesday night was recaptured by the Germans. They pulled out yesterday morning after setting fire systematically to the town by placing incendiary leaves in most of the buildings.

Although the German withdrawal is general and fast, it is orderly. Dull weather has interfered with air support.

South of Pont Leveque British infantry has taken over high ground dominating Blangy.

Discussing yesterday's advances a Canadian army spokesman said "rapid movement has been resumed and the line seems to be breaking open again."

5,000 Planes Drop 8,000 Tons Steel

LONDON, Aug. 25—(CP)—Five thousand Allied aircraft — more than half of them heavy bombers—struck from Britain and Italy yesterday against German oil, aircraft and industrial targets from the Baltic to the Balkans and smashed naval and merchant vessels the enemy hoped to use in evacuating his western ports.

An estimated 8,000 tons of exploding steel poured down on at least 21 objectives stretching from the great Baltic port of Kiel on through Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia and French and Netherlands ports as good weather over central Europe released the heavyweights which had been grounded five days.

Twenty-five separate attacks were made on the light warships trying to escape from Le Havre and many were reported hit while others were chased back into port.

Police Disperse Crowds Marking Paris "Freedom"

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 25—(AP)—Uniformed and plain clothes policemen, beating pedestrians with nightsticks and charging strollers on horseback to keep them on the move, prevented crowds from congregating throughout the city last night to celebrate the liberation of Paris.

A huge throng, demonstrating in the Plaza Francia in celebration of French capital's freedom, was dispersed by the police. Several demonstrators were injured and many were arrested.

The disturbance came after the crowd, shouting "Argentine yes, Nazis no," hoisted Gen. Arturo Rawson, Argentine's two-day president during the June, 1943, revolution, and carried him on their shoulders. Police then charged the demonstrators.

Nazis Reported Quitting Robomb Channel Coast

quarters spokesmen said the survivors of the Nazi army were penned into a box between the Risle and Seine rivers, barely 15 miles deep and 20 miles long.

The situation was moving swiftly toward a climax, and spokesmen said it was quite probable that by dawn Saturday the Allies would be complete masters of the south bank of the Seine.

ROADS JAMMED

Word of the mass enemy withdrawal was flashed back to headquarters by Allied airmen, who reported the roads leading east and south from Dieppe, Amiens, Beauvais and the surrounding areas jammed with German traffic.

Throughout Thursday, large numbers of Nazi trucks were spotted racing down toward the Marne and the German frontier, and RAF night fliers reported that the flow of traffic increased after dark.

For the first time since the battle of France began, the Germans ignored the presence of Allied night planes overhead and rode bumper to bumper with their headlights blazing: indicating the frantic haste of the evacuation.

Headquarters spokesmen had no immediate comment, beyond the grim note that the weather in northern France was clear today and that Allied warplanes already were ranging over the crowded highways.

The reported evacuation of the channel coast from which Nazi robot bombs have been spreading death indiscriminately through London and southern England since mid-June, came as four Allied armies crushed through the beaten remnants of the German Seventh army with a speed that indicated the battle of the Seine had reached its final hours.

CONVERGING DRIVES

United Kingdom and Canadian forces from the west slashed as much as 10 miles into the Nazi pocket between the Risle and Seine rivers while the American 1st Army crushed in from the south in converging drives that threatened to carry quickly into the great channel port of Le Havre.

Troops of Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian 1st Army pounded along the channel coast to the outskirts of Honfleur, directly across the Seine estuary from Le Havre and within full view of the port, while the Americans last were reported at Elbeuf, less than 40 miles south of Le Havre, and closing in rapidly.

RAF fliers smashed one apparent German attempt to evacuate Le Havre early Thursday morning, and an unconfirmed report broadcast by Radio France at Algiers said British airborne troops had been landed near the port in the Seine estuary area.

Canadian troops drove 10 miles east of Lisieux to Brionne on the Risle River, while another column lunged forward north of Orbec to capture Thiberville and push on to the Risle east of Bernay, which was occupied in the advance.

GAIN FOUR MILES

The Canadians also moved forward on the Monnai-Bernay highway, gaining four miles and capturing Broglie.

Between Lisieux and the channel coast, the Dominion troops also hammered out deep gains, moving forward four miles from Pont Leveque to establish a solid 7½ mile line along the Cologne River from Moyaux to Les Authieux.

The American thrust toward the channel along the south bank of the Seine was reported meeting stiffer opposition as the Germans fought furiously to hold open the last remaining Seine crossing north of Elbeuf. Fierce fighting raged in the latter city, which had been reported captured yesterday.

The Americans, however, had linked their left flank with the British 2nd Army line near Conches and were grinding steadily into the southern rim of the pocket.

Allied airmen reported that many of the Nazis, trapped against the Seine without boats or bridges, were attempting to swim the stream under continuous attack by low-flying planes.

Below the great pocket, American troops closed in around Paris from the north, west and south while the French 2nd Armored Division raced into the capital to relieve the embattled partisan street army there.

BRIDGEHEADS STRENGTHENED

Montereau, 20 miles south-southeast of Paris, was occupied by the Americans and the bridgeheads across the Seine around Melun and Fontainebleau were strengthened.

The Germans launched several counter-attacks against the Seine bridgeheads above Paris in the Mantes area, but broke off the assault under heavy American fire.

MONTREAL, Aug. 25.—(CP)—E. T. Sterne, chemicals controller, said last night that sufficient penicillin now is available to treat all civilian patients in hospital following directions outlined in the treatment guide prepared by the medical advisory committee on penicillin.

All Kinda Foggy!

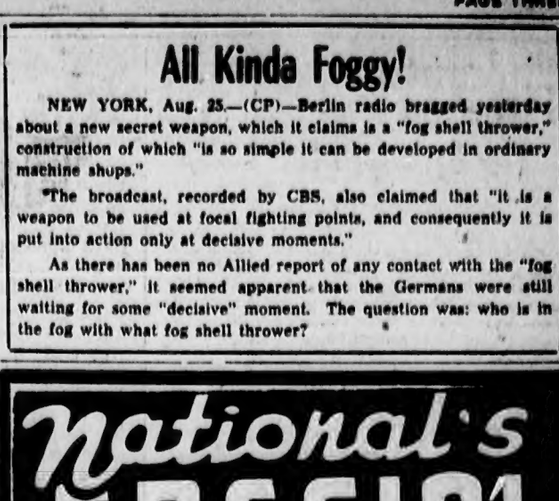

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(CP)—Berlin radio bragged yesterday about a new secret weapon, which it claims is a "fog shell thrower," construction of which "is so simple it can be developed in ordinary machine shops."

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, also claimed that "it is a weapon to be used at focal fighting points, and consequently it is put into action only at decisive moments."

As there has been no Allied report of any contact with the "fog shell thrower," it seemed apparent that the Germans were still waiting for some "decisive" moment. The question was: who is in the fog with what fog shell thrower?

AND IT'LL SCARE THE PANTS OFF SCHIKELGRUBER

It's my HEALTH, mister. The same stuff that makes Canada's army the fightin'est in the world. We've got the best doctors, nurses and hospitals in the world. We've got mothers that know how to keep Canada strong.

Our family newspaper even has a special department to help make me big and strong. My doctor's so busy now with so many other doctors and nurses helping my country he told my mammie to follow Myrtle Meyer Eldred's advice in The Bulletin every day.

It saves her lots of worry . . . and I'm feeling better myself. I know I'll be in condition to help build that bigger and better world my buddies are fighting for today. So watch out mister schikelgruber!

A Desperate Situation

Men have three basic physical needs—food, clothing and shelter. It is the first and primary business of government to see that its people are supplied with these needs. No other consideration can be placed ahead of this.

That is why the housing situation in Edmonton and elsewhere deserves much greater attention than it is getting at present. Not even the winning of the war is of more importance than that our people, including those men and the families of those men who have helped to win the war, should have the adequate shelter that every human being requires as a fundamental right.

It is no secret that the housing situation in Edmonton is desperate. At least 2,000 dwellings or alternative accommodation units are needed immediately and urgently. At least 5,000 are needed, as a minimum requirement, for a decent solution to the problem.

Wartime Housing Ltd., has completed 236 homes which are already occupied. Another 100 will be completed by the end of October. Permits for a total of 700 houses have been issued this year.

Efforts have been made by the city, too, to supply accommodation in various unused buildings.

But all this does not begin to solve the problem. Neither manpower nor materials are released fast enough to meet the situation. Even furnaces are not available, with winter coming on, for some of the new houses.

The first thing, then, that needs to be done is the diversion of more manpower into building activities. Ottawa cannot claim that this cannot be done when thousands of conscripts are living throughout the country at public expense, fighting the Hun by forming fours, or whatever they do, on parade grounds.

This is an issue the federal government must meet squarely. It is not good enough to say that housing is a municipal responsibility when it is federal restrictions that cripple the local authorities.

Another circumstance that increases the gravity of the situation is the refusal of many builders to rent their completed houses. They insist upon sales and cash sales at that. The wartime wage earner, in the financial straightjacket of crippling income taxes and frozen salaries, cannot buy houses. He can assume no further debt when he will never be able to pay what he has already incurred.

As a result, new houses are standing vacant in Edmonton while people are homeless.

Another factor which contributes to the desperate condition is the refusal of landlords to accommodate families with children. There is no reason why this refusal should not be prohibited by law provided parents can post a bond to repair any damage to premises done by children.

It is probably true that the housing situation cannot be entirely cleared up overnight. There is bound to be some hardship and privation. But the situation can be widely alleviated by the immediate passage of the regulations indicated above.

No one can shift the responsibility for this condition. It is the business of not any one government, but of all governments. And unless all governments accept the responsibility, the people of Canada will hold them strictly to account.

Creche Improvements

It has been announced that the city will undertake the renovation of the Edmonton creche as soon as materials and manpower become available.

If improvements to the city creche must wait that long, there is no reason why an entirely new and more adequate building should not be erected.

Creche work in Edmonton has completely outgrown the capacity of the present building. And there is no indication anywhere that the scope of that work will decrease. On the contrary there is evidence that it will steadily increase.

Under those circumstances the improvements promised simply fail to meet requirements.

If the patching-up program had been proposed as an immediate expedient to make the present building habitable until a new one were erected, there might be some point in it. But since even the patching-up must wait until the war's end, there is no reason on earth a more complete and satisfactory plan, involving an entirely new building, should not be considered.

Civilization Advances

While the fighting men of the United Nations are grappling with the forces of savagery on the battlegrounds of the world, it is refreshing to note that the niceties of civilization are not being neglected on the home front.

Parallel to the news of the liberation of Paris appears an account of what a Los Angeles maternity hospital has done to lessen one of the greater agonies that beset the human race. We refer to the anguish suffered by fathers in the making.

This Los Angeles hospital, it appears, has installed a loud-speaker system between its delivery rooms and the waiting room where potential fathers pace up and down in the travail of paternity. The presiding doctor, in each delivery, issues regular bulletins to the expectant husband. He is told of each new development. The courage of the wife is described in limpid eloquence. And the arrival of the child permits the presiding medico to grow really lyrical.

All this performance naturally lightens the tremendous mental burdens of the enceinte gentlemen, (if one may be permitted to employ the term), who in darker days could only pass this dreadful period alternating between pulling out their hair and falling into a coma.

It will be recalled that when Eve was banished from the Garden of Eden she was told that she would bring forth her young in pain and sorrow. Well, science has done something about that. There are all sorts of trick ways today of avoiding this sentence. As a matter of fact, childbirth has become considerably less tiresome than a tonsilectomy.

But what has science done for the suffering father? Not a single thing until this Los Angeles hospital stepped into the breach.

This, one might say, is one of the milestones in civilized progress. No longer need we fear the decimation of our population because paternity is such an awful ordeal. The frightful curse is lifted. No longer need strong men blench and grow haggard at the prospect of bearing, so to speak, a child.

Nearing the End

Romania's repudiation of the Axis alliance and her switch to the Allied side is not hailed as any triumph of the Romanian conscience. Although the Romanian peasants are sound folk and were always inclined to friendship with Britain, the Romanian ruling class has not been admirable in any respect. One cannot forget, for instance, that the family name of this same King Michael who now exhorts his people so eloquently is Hohenzollern.

However, the implication of the Romanian debacle is highly significant. Hitler's oil supplies and food sources are definitely curtailed. Bulgaria will be frightened, now, into making even more gracious and humbling requests for peace.

Hungary becomes more vulnerable, as is already shown by the mutinies in the Hungarian armies.

The truth is that the Romanian collapse, in which the Romanians took the sensible view that anything was better than a Russian invasion, is probably the beginning of the end of the Axis. Even Japan must feel the moral repercussions of this crumbling.

We have come to discount precedents in this war. So it perhaps means nothing, although it is interesting to note, that only 43 days elapsed between the surrender of the first German satellite in the First Great War and the surrender of Germany herself.

Looking Backward

From The Bulletin Files

1894: 50 Years Ago

K. Macdonald arrived in town from Washington territory last week, having been 48 days on the way, coming by trail. Travelling the mountain trails is very difficult and dangerous. Between Calgary and Lacombe no water could be found for the horses. Another party of five wagons is on the way from Washington, having started 10 weeks ago.

The hydraulic gold washer that was brought in recently is being tested on the south shore of the river near the upper ferry. It is similar to the old style grizzly and works with a hose, through which water is brought from the river and forced out by a steam engine.

A crofter settlement was started on the Slave river last year, at a point between Fort Smith and Fort Resolution, about 900 miles from Edmonton. Thomas Kerr and Duncan McDonald, from Stornoway, Isle of Lewis, were sent out by an English lad of title and chose the spot. Reports are that the men are contented and making a comfortable living by fishing and hunting.

For the first time since the Leiter corner in 1898, wheat touched the dollar mark in Chicago.

Fort Saskatchewan is opening a new three-roomed school.

A. B. Agar of Lion's Head, Ont., arrived in town yesterday.

London.—Britain called the attention of the Russian government to the continued interference with British merchant ships by the Russian cruiser Smolensk. The reply was that instructions to leave British ships alone had evidently not reached the Russian ship. British cruisers have accordingly been ordered to convey the instructions to the Smolensk and two of them have left the Cape for that purpose.

Nearly a ton of gold was shipped in one lot recently from Whitehorse to Seattle. The gold was in bricks and the value about $450,000.

1914: 30 Years Ago

London.—The conflict of millions appears to be at last in progress. Even such news as the sinking of the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse pales beside the titanic battle evidenced by the tribute of Gen. Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, to the British arms, and the realization that the Allies are fighting to block the road to Paris with the German forces hardly further away than 100 miles.

Col. E. B. Edwards announces a public meeting to be held Saturday evening in the Separate school, to take action toward the formation of a volunteer corps for home defence.

1924: 20 Years Ago

Montreal.—Liberation from Bordeaux jail of four of the six bandits who held up the Hochelaga Bank collection car in April last, looted it of $142,288, and killed the chauffeur, Henry Cleroux, was the real aim of a plot that was smashed when G. Serafini was detected making his way out of the prison early Monday morning. Two jail guards are under arrest, charged with conspiracy.

The Exhibition Board will have a deficit of $2,000 for the year.

Western Canada's wheat crop is estimated at 265,000,000 bushels.

Visiting the Gangsters Who Coveted the World

Weird and Fantastic Were Nazi Leaders in Their Poses

By I.N.S. in Ottawa Journal

Remember the nervous days of early 1940 when President Roosevelt sent Sumner Welles to Europe in search of peace? Within a few weeks he saw Hitler, Mussolini, Goering and all their goons.

With victory in the air we can smile at those tense moments; but perhaps it is well we should not forget them. In his new book on America's foreign policy, called "The Time for Decision," the former U.S. Under Secretary of State tells the story outspokenly and with lively details.

It was in the days of the "phony" war, the Maginot mirage.

Mussolini's foreign minister came first, Count Ciano. A cordial, unaffected man, he spoke colloquial English and made it clear he distrusted Italian-German relations. "If Hitler wants anything—and God knows he always wants enough—Ribbentrop always goes him one better." Ciano complained of Hitler's misregard of Italy's wishes and told Welles that Italy usually learned of Germany's moves after they had begun. "Tell President Roosevelt that so long as I am Foreign Minister Italy will not enter the war on the side of Germany." (Ciano didn't keep this promise, but he must have been a thorn in Mussolini's side for he was shot by the Nazi's, presumably at his father-in-law's direction.)

Mussolini was next, located after a march through halls and antechambers that led to his own huge and unfurnished room. "He was ponderous and static rather than vital. He moved with elephantine motion and his face in repose fell in rolls of flesh. During our long and rapid interchange of views he kept his eyes shut . . . opening them with his dynamic wide stare only when he desired to underline some remark. At his side was a large cup of some hot brew which he sipped from time to time."

Ciano was interpreter. We needn't bother with what any of these people said. That is history. But it is perhaps news that when Welles mentioned international trade without discrimination Il Duce broke in: "And could there be greater discriminations than those found in the Ottawa agreements?" He added that the like of the Ottawa agreements drove Italy into an autarchy.

Welles says Mussolini was profoundly certain that none of the peoples at war desired war, but he seemed almost equally certain that war was inevitable. The Allies, said Il Duce, greatly underrated the strength and efficiency of the German organization for war.

The American writes that as the interview ended Mussolini spoke in English and French. Welles asked if he still rode every morning. Mussolini said he did, but that he had taken up tennis and was finding it a great game, almost as hard exercise as fencing. He was delighted to say that that very morning he had beaten his professional 6-2.

The most astonishing interview of his mission, says Welles, was with Ribbentrop. "He received me at the door of his office without even the semblance of a smile, and without a word of greeting." Welles greeted him in English, knowing well that Ribbentrop speaks English. But the German looked back icily and barked for an interpreter.

Ribbentrop then began to speak and didn't stop for more than two hours, his arms extended down the sides of his chair and his eyes tight shut. "The pomposity and absurdity of his manner could not be exaggerated. One could only assume that he envisioned himself as the Delphic oracle."

Welles says Ribbentrop's outpourings were an amazing conglomeration of misinformation and deliberate lies, punctured with snake-like hisses against England. England, England, a country whose craft and guile had kept the Reich from her ambitions.

After more than two hours Ribbentrop's voice gave out and Welles spoke briefly. The German then replied that England had attacked Germany and that German right could only be won through victory. That ended the interview, and Welles wrote in his diary that night that Ribbentrop had a completely closed mind and a very stupid mind, "saturated with hate for England".

A talk with State Secretary von Weizsaecker is worth mentioning only because the frightened Nazi admitted he had been told what to say by Ribbentrop and then drew his chair to the centre of the room and motioned Welles to do likewise. Apparently the Gestapo had dictaphones in the walls!

To see Hitler in the Chancellory entailed a parade of 20 couples through courtyards and outer offices, surrounded by monumental black statues, bowing officials and flunkies in light-blue satin liveries with powdered hair.

With slow and measured tread they traversed a tremendously long red marble hall, mounted a flight of excessively slippery red marble steps into a gallery the size of the salon of an ocean liner. Hitler greeted him pleasantly, though with great formality. Ribbentrop and an interpreter were also present.

"Hitler was taller than I had judged, seemed in excellent physical condition, color was good, eyes were tired but clear. He was dignified in speech and movement. His voice in conversation was low and well modulated. It had only once during our conversation of an hour and a half the raucous stridency which is always heard in his speeches, and it was only at that moment that his features lost their composure. He spoke with clarity and precision and I was able to follow every word in German, although Dr. Schmidt interpreted—and at times inaccurately."

What he said we all know. England, the cur, had hunted poor harmless Hitler until he must rise in self-defence. "I believe that German might is such as to make the triumph of Germany inevitable but, if not, we will all go down together . . . whether that be for better or for worse."

The interview over, the procession re-formed and slowly retraced its steps through those fantastic halls. "I remember thinking to myself as I got into the car", writes Wells, "that it was only too tragically plain that all decisions had already been made. The best that could be hoped for was delay."

Then came a visit to Goering's palace in the country. The entrance drive continued for many miles, blocked at intervals by closed gates which opened automatically upon the car's approach. The loud clangor of a signal bell recorded their progress and the road was lined by high fences behind which Goering kept his menagerie of nearly-extinct animals.

The palace was about the size of the National Art Gallery in Washington, but at least Goering didn't keep his guest waiting. "His thighs and arms were tremendous and his girth was monstrous. He wore a white tunic on which were plastered various emblems and insignia in brilliants, and over the Iron Cross which hung from his neck dangled a monocle on a black cord. His hands were shaped like the digging paws of a badger. On his right hand he wore an enormous ring set with six huge diamonds. On his left he wore an emerald at least an inch square. His manner was simple, unaffected and exceedingly cordial and he spoke with far greater frankness and clarity than any other German official whom I met . . . following exactly the same lines as Hitler and Ribbentrop."

Goering seemed to have at least some impression of the outside world and of the psychology of other peoples. Yet he, too, was convinced that Britain and France had always been out to destroy Germany, and Welles left that ugly and ostentatious building in a mood of deep gloom as well as deep certainty.

There is now just a glimpse at Hess, whom Welles found "a man who had only the lowest order of intelligence". Hess spoke only from printed cards, strictly following the lines laid down by Ribbentrop, and behind him stood "a somewhat disorderly and intrusive group of four or five youthful Nazi party leaders who, while not actually joining in the conversation, appeared to have previously rehearsed with Hess every word of what he was to say . . . Hess was patently of abnormal mentality. His was a personality easily subject to domination by a stronger character. It has always, consequently, been incredible to me that his notorious flight to England could have been undertaken on his own initiative. He went as an emissary".

That makes up the Axis gentlemen on Welles' calling sheet. What a crew they would have made to run a world! Maybe we should erect images in their likeness, too, under the warning: "Lest We Forget."

Dominion-Provincial Relations in Danger

Strategy of Duplessis Is Not Conducive to Unity In Canada

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA — Against the background of Dominion-Provincial relations and the likelihood that they will become the foremost problem of our domestic politics as soon as the war in Europe ends, the campaign staged by Maurice Duplessis as leader of the National Union party in the Quebec provincial election has unusual interest outside that province. Mr. Duplessis will take office as premier on August 30. His political strength, as shown in the popular vote, was 37 per cent, but it was distributed evenly enough to assure the capture of a majority of seats in the Quebec legislature.

Mr. Duplessis is one of the most effective stump speakers in Canadian politics. He succeeded in taking the offensive against the Godbout government, a factor which contributed greatly to his success. He concentrated upon a theme of defending Quebec's rights. He did not attack Canada's participation in the war openly—that was left to the Bloc Populaire, which suffered a disastrous reverse in the Quebec election. But indirectly, and sometimes directly, his attack was concentrated upon the centralization of wartime powers in the federal government.

The return of Maurice Duplessis to office in Quebec is, therefore, a sober warning to expectations that Canadian policy can continue in peacetime with the degree of centralized planning which has been followed during the war.

At the same time, Mr. Duplessis' speeches left unanswered the crucial question of Quebec's attitude and probable degree of co-operation with other provinces in the coming Dominion-Provincial conference. To be realistic, one must discount all rosy hopes of easy solutions of the critical problems that are arising in the field of Dominion-Provincial relations.

On July 24, for instance, Mr. Duplessis spoke at Cabano, the home town of Major Paul Triquet, VC, and spoke at length on "the need of a Quebec government which would govern for Quebec and not for Ottawa." The next day, at Riviere du Loup, he declared that the original principle of National Union, to have no tie with any federal party, was still adhered to.

"History shows," said Mr. Duplessis, "that Quebec has paid too dearly for having its political parties linked with federal political parties." He also declared that "Quebec must always retain its characteristic agricultural character."

This theme of Quebec as a distinctive and separate agricultural region, however useful it was among the farmers of the south bank of the St. Lawrence, changed to concern over the relative inequality of industrial wages in Quebec when Mr. Duplessis moved to industrial areas. At St. James Market in Montreal on Aug. 2, Duplessis said: "Under Mr. Godbout, wages are settled in Ottawa. Under a National Union Government such matters will be settled in Quebec. We will see to it that salaries paid in this province are equal to those paid in other provinces for equal work."

Duplessis spoke of the Godbout ministers who had co-operated with Ottawa as "traitors." He urged his hearers to use their votes to crucify the traitors. He said: "We want men who will stand up to the centralizers." He frequently called the Godbout government "a Charlie McCarthy of Ottawa and the centralizers there." He said: "We must cease being a trailer of Ottawa."

Duplessis said the 1939 election (in which he was defeated) launched a movement to ruin Quebec "by depriving the province of its rights." He said this movement was based on the War Measures Act. "The Ottawa movement I have in mind," he said at St. Hyacinthe on July 29, "will make the French Canadians in Quebec slaves and foreigners in their own province." At Joliette the next day, he promised to establish a Quebec radio system. "We are going to have our own provincial system," he said, "where we will be able to speak in our own language as long as we wish." On Aug. 2 he rapped the federal government for restricting liquor and beer, forcing he said, "people who had been content with beer to go to the liquor commission for diluted whisky and pa, high prices."

At Hull on Aug. 4, Duplessis charged the Godbout government had lost or abandoned Quebec's constitutional rights. "What we demand," he said, "is the restoration of the rights and prerogatives which are ours by constitutional enactment." He described the election as "a political struggle which is a question of life and death for provincial rights and the survival of Quebec."

A farmer or a worker in Quebec he said, "cannot purchase an agricultural implement, cannot build a house, cannot go for a drive in an automobile, and cannot change his address without a permit from Ottawa." Finally, in the Charlevoix-Saguenay deferred election campaign on Aug. 20, Duplessis appealed for a National Union victory as a warning to "the enemies of the province at Ottawa." He said: "The centralizers are watching."

The record therefore, shows that Mr. Duplessis hardly missed a single grievance on which to construct his appeal to provincialism in Quebec.

The Legs of Jesse Owens

By J. H. GRAY

Who is the owner of the world's most beautiful pair of legs? A nice question to start a hot-weather argument with, that one. The odds are at least a million to one that when the answers begin to pop the gals will have it. People, unthinking people, will come to bat for Marlene Dietrich, or Betty Grable, or Hedy Lamarr or some such other lovely. All such judgments, it seems to us, are based upon insufficient evidence. Have any of those who hold these opinions ever beheld the legs of Mr. Jesse Owens? If they have and still hold that Miss Grable's legs have anything on Mr. Owens', they ought to make a date with an oculist.

Mr. Owens undraped his legs before some 2,000 Winnipeggers Monday night at the Osborne stadium. To get a glimpse of them it was necessary to sit through two hours of the grimmest kind of baseball, but it was a price well worth paying, a price which those who beheld Mr. Owens' legs regarded as trifling indeed. After all, art pilgrims have walked for miles through the streets of Florence to see Giovanni da Bologna's celebrated bronze statue of Mercury. By all accounts, it's pretty terrific; but if the Flemish genius had had Mr. Owens for a model it would have been perfect.

Mr. Owens is a modest young man. We doubt if he has ever given much thought to the sheer beauty of his underpinning. But we are glad he came along to demonstrate to 2,000 of us that the male leg does not necessarily have to be knotted and gnarled like a highland briar cane. Too many male legs consist of bony knees, muscled thighs and ham-bonish calves; truly gruesome-looking things at best, and good reason indeed for men to wear trousers. His are extraordinarily lithe, smoother even than Betty Grable's silk-encased gams, and not a vein protrudes anywhere to mar the beautiful symmetry of the lines that so smoothly flow from his hips to his ankles.

But there is more to Mr. Owens' legs than mere beauty. They have outstanding utility value. These legs have carried Mr. Owens down cinder paths at a faster clip than any other pair of legs has travelled in athletic history. In his prime, Mr. Owens was the fastest human being at any distance from 60 to 200 meters. Many of the records he set in the early 1930's are still on the books, still unsurpassed. Mr. Owens is an old man now, as athletes go. He has long passed his prime. At 31, he will conquer no more worlds. As we watched him Monday night trying to give a trio of local boys a head start and catch them in a hundred yards, our thoughts went back eight years to another setting.

Eight years ago Mr. Owens undraped his legs before a vast audience of Herr Hitler's Herrenvolk at the Berlin Olympics. They were better legs then, faster legs. If that great audience had not been quite too deeply doped with Hitler's racism, this might have been a different world. They were the master-race. They belonged to the cult of the body beautiful. They would rule the world because they were superior beings. Then Mr. Owens trotted out into the arena to do his stuff.

It would have been bad enough for the Germans at that stage to be beaten even by white-skinned Nordics. But when Mr. Owens proceeded to run all competition into the ground he exploded Der Fuehrer's grandiose theories right in Der Fuehrer's face. Nor was that all. Mr. Owens was accompanied by several other American Negroes—by Ralph Metcalfe, Conny Johnson, John Woodruff and Archie Williams. The chores which Mr. Owens did not personally take care of were well handled by the others.

It is true that the Germans did not emerge empty-handed. They did win the hammer-throw, the shot-put and the javelin-throw. In the eyes of the Herrenvolk these were much superior to mere foot-racing and jumping. But, if they think about Mr. Owens at all, they must now realize how wrong their judgment was. The Germans have taken up foot-racing in a big way in the past year. Proficiency at it would have meant important things for the Germans—things like staying alive. Mr. Owens, with his beautiful legs, showed them how it should be done. It was beneath the dignity of the Herrenvolk to learn anything from the representative of an inferior race. They ignored Mr. Owens' demonstration; concentrated on hammer-throwing. But in France, in Italy and in Russia today even the simon-purest Aryan in the German army would very willingly trade whatever weight-throwing skill he has for even an ersatz pair of Mr. Owens' legs.

As a matter of fact, when we step into a bathing suit ourselves we would willingly swap just about anything we have for those beautiful legs of Mr. Owens. And so, we suspect, would most of the bathing beauties and movie queens—up to and including Miss Grable herself.

Animals in Law

From the Vancouver Province

In spite of the war, we are living in a rather humane world. People like animals and go to considerable lengths to keep them and defend them.

In the past few days, dogs, roosters and goats have all had their time in court in Vancouver. The owner of a rooster was fined for allowing his lusty bird to disturb the sleep of the neighborhood. A dog that was accused of barking too much was given a reprieve of a week in which to help his owner find witnesses in his favor. A number of goats received a clean bill of health in the rental court.

It is worth noting that in all this animal litigation, the animal was the defendant.

"Whoever knew an honest brute
At law his neighbor prosecute?"

Why do people like animals and defend their pets with such alacrity when the pets get into trouble? Perhaps Walt Whitman has the answer:

"I think I could turn and live with animals, they are so placid and self-contained.
I stand and look at them and long and long.
They do not sweat and whine about their condition.
They do not lie awake in the dark and weep for their sins.
They do not make me sick discussing their duty to God,
Not one is dissatisfied, not one is demented with the mania of owning things.
Not one kneels to another, nor to his kind that lived thousands of years ago."

Lost Votes!

FROM THE NEW YORK TIMES MAGAZINE

The Republicans refuse to concede the Democratic claim that the nation's labor vote is a solid Democratic vote, and is out to capture a sizable share of it.

And not to be forgotten in all these considerations are the 11,000,000 men and women in uniform, most of them of voting age, who are changing their addresses at home and abroad at the rate of at least 10,000 a day and whose thoughts these days are not of politics.

No wonder the Democratic and Republican statisticians who are trying to figure out who is going to gain what out of the wartime population shifts are suffering from mental chills and fever.

Daily War Map—Exclusively in The Edmonton Bulletin

Area shown in the map above looms as a new theatre of war with the Philippine island of Mindanao as eventual goal.

Average Wheat Yield in Alta. Set at 18 Bush.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25.—(CP)—The Winnipeg Free Press, in its fourth crop report this year, estimated yesterday that wheat yield in Manitoba will average 25 bushels an acre, 20 bushels in Saskatchewan and 18 in Alberta.

The survey showed that with harvesting underway in all three provinces, the labor shortage loomed a major problem. More than 50 per cent of Manitoba points said "many" outside workers are needed while many Saskatchewan and Alberta areas also need a few harvest helpers.

HARVESTING GENERAL

Harvesting became general in Manitoba Aug. 10, in Saskatchewan Aug. 16 and in Alberta Aug. 21, the report said. In north-central sections of Alberta, where the crop is heaviest, harvesting will not be general until late this week.

Estimated coarse grain yields per acre:

Manitoba—Oats, 38 bushels, barley 30, flax 11, rye 17.

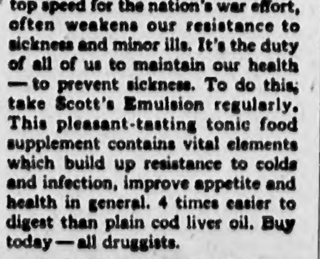

Saskatchewan—Oats, 38 bushels, barley 28, flax nine, rye 19.

Alberta—Oats, 37 bushels, barley 27, flax eight, rye 16.

"Some frost damage is expected in north-central Saskatchewan, five points mentioning loss from this cause," the report said. "Damage was expected from sawfly, although the extent could not be judged until the crop was cut."

Hail was reported from 26 Manitoba points, 45 in Saskatchewan and 26 in Alberta, while flood losses was reported from 27 Manitoba points, one in Saskatchewan and eight in Alberta, with most severe loss in the southern Red River Valley.

Leading Man

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

SIGNALLERS ran the margin pretty close, but nevertheless reached the wire ahead of the pack to take team fielding honors, after a strong stretch finish. They lost the lead to Dodgers between July 15 and August 5, but have been the most consistent fielding club in the senior circuit since the start of the season.

Dodgers' fielding improved steadily from .898 as at June 10, to .901 two weeks later and then on to .911 at July 15 and .914 on August 5. Almost three points improvement is noted in figures released today. Signallers' average is exactly the same now as on June 10, namely .917.

On the other hand, Dodgers have been hitting steadily as a team and have always been on top in that department. Their averages for the various release dates starting with June 10 are: .259, .269, .258, .257 and now .258. Signallers term batting has come a long way since June 10—.165 to .215.

Final figures show these two clubs possess most of the top hitters in the league, such as Jim Junker, Bob Sawyer, Dave Brockie, George Green, Mel Ottem, Harry Baldwin, Lester Nelson, Ab Superstein, Ralph Morgan, Bert Culver and Jim Kelly.

The semi-final series which opens on Saturday night at 6:30 should be good. And it still looks like Tommy Brant and Bob Sawyer as starting pitchers.

CLUTCH HITTER RACE CLOSE

MANUEL DORSKY and George Green staged quite a race for runs-batted-in, winding up with 18 each. Then follow Harry Baldwin 16, Ralph Morgan 15, Mel Ottem 15, Gino Valenti 14, Lester Nelson 13, Doug Roush and Al Goodrich 12, Jim Junker and John Galvin 11, and Dave Brockie, Bob Sawyer and Jim Kelly 10.

Dorsky, Galvin, Roush and Meyers all had six two-baggers and Brockie, Baldwin, Stevenson, Schumacher, Nelson, Schisser and McGill four each. Valenti had four triples, one more than Roush and two above Green, Baldwin, Morgan, Burchfield, Sawyer, Nelson, Thomas and O'Connor. Home runs were made by McGill 3, Thomas 2, Brockie, Morgan, Galvin, Roush, Maskewich and Lupul.

Bert Culver's 27 for bases on balls was 12 above last year's high made by Fred Lupul and Frank Wrigglesworth. Next to Bert are Green 19, Roush 14, Shandro and McGill 12, Baldwin and Burchfield 10.

Dorsky had most sacrifice hits, 7, Stevenson, Brant and Schumacher being next four. Green, Shander, Schisser, Read and O'Connor all had three. Lupul and Superstein were both hit seven times and Dorsky three.

The two bases Burchfield stole against Arrows on August 22 gave him 15 and the larceny title. Junker's angle no doubt cramped his style, but he had 14 when injured on August 8, the same total as Superstein finished with. Roush had 12, Brockie and Read 10 each and Ottem, Galvin, Culver, all nine. Valenti stole 8.

Noble King Wins Fourth Straight

CALGARY, Aug. 25 — (CP) — Noble King won its fourth straight race here Thursday, capturing the feature handicap, but it had to break the track record to defeat the fast-closing Bragabout.

Horses ran true to form again, Starnaut being the only one to pay off in double figures.

In the sixth race, Lend Lease threw a shoe in the paddock and was excused from taking part in the race. All monies bet on that horse were refunded.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 25—(AP)—King's Counsel, world champion pacer owned by E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill. lowered his own record to 1:59½ in a exhibition mile at the Wisconsin state fair Thursday. The Baker horse, which had a mark of 2:00 made as a three-year-old last year, failed by half a second to beat the track record for pacers.

Clare Hollingsworth, manager of the provincial champion Army and Navy Pats, has been given authority by the Western Canada Fastball Association to negotiate arrangements with Vancouver and is expecting his team to meet the B.C. representatives in Vancouver on the Labor Day week-end.

If present plans made by the Edmonton manager work out, the Pats will likely leave for the coast on Wednesday morning. They would play five games in six nights there.

In the event that the Pats win out, the western final will be staged in Edmonton as soon as possible. If B.C. should triumph, they would travel to the Saskatchewan representative's home park.

Cracks Par by Seven

Bulla Back in Spotlight At Tam O'Shanter Tourney

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(AP)—A year ago, in the Tam O'Shanter all-American open golf tournament, Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, Ga., fired a 296, finished in a tie for 43rd place, and didn't win a dime.

But Thursday the husky 30-year-old club swinger who quit professional golf to become an airlines pilot had a strangle hold on a hefty share of the $42,500 prize money at the three-ring circus, and a three-stroke edge toward the $13,462.50 top award.

Johnny Bulla

Bull Thursday carved out a 35-30—65, seven under par, to tie the course record and hand a field of 122 professionals and seven amateurs — including eight former United States open winners and seven P. G. A. champions—a licking.

Bulla played 11 holes at par and birdied the other seven, getting six birdies on the back nine where four of them came in a row as he drove, pitched and putted like a composite of all the greats.

BYRON NELSON CLOSE

Close on his heels, however, was the most dangerous of the modern club-swingers, Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio; who holed a 35-foot birdie putt on the final hole to post a 68—three strokes off the pace.

Bracketed at 69 were four stalwarts, including Pete Cooper of Gainesville, Ga.; Bud Lewis, Philadelphia open champion; Melvin (Chick) Harbert, the long-hitter from Battle Creek, Mich., and Gene Sarazen, twice winner of the National Open, from Brookfield Farms, Conn.

Topping the amateurs in the open test was Jim Frisina of Taylorville, Ill., who had a sub-par 70 to tie pro George Smith of Lake Forest, Ill.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, the year's big money winner and co-favorite with Nelson to take down the high prizes, was in the fight with a 71 where he was tied with eight others including such luminaries as Vic Ghezzi, former PGA king, and Ed Dudley, president of the PGA.

Sixteen players matched the card at 72, among them Denny Shute, the former British open and PGA champion; Sam Byrd, the former Yankee outfielder; Johnny Revolta, ex-champion of the PGA, and Sam Parks, once a national open ruler. Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., winner of the PGA title last Sunday, was one of 10 deadlocked at 73.

AMONG FINISHERS

Among Thursday's finishers were the following Canadians:

Bill Kerr, Toronto, 39-38—77.

Robert Gray, Scarboro, Toronto, 37-37—76.

Robert Burns, Weston, Toronto, 41-36-77.

Dick Borthwick, Oakdale, Toronto, 36-39-75.

J. Burns, Moose Jaw, Sask., 43-41—84.

Stanley Horne, Montreal, 38-38—76.

Betty Hicks of Long Beach, Calif., duration national women's champ and one of three professionals in the field of 27 women, led the way through the first round of the pulchritude division with a 40-38—78, two over feminine par. She was 5 over par at the end of 14, but birdied three of the last four with a 4-3-3-3 finish.

Baseball Body Block

Lou Boudreau of Indians throws body block on Snuffy Stirnweiss at Yankee Stadium, knocking ball from his hands, to be safe at second base and break up double play in first inning. But New York prevailed, 11-8, on Bud Metheny's three-run homer in ninth.

Baz O'Meara Also Candidate

Vice-President of American Hockey League Suggested as N.H.L. Head

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—(CP)—John Chick, vice-president of the American Hockey League and former president of the now defunct International Hockey League, was suggested as a possibility for the National Hockey League presidency by Vern DeGeer, sports editor of the Globe and Mail in the Globe today.

Directly and indirectly Chick has been responsible in large measure for the rescuing of the N.H.L. from the wartime sports casualty list, DeGeer said. Chick was closely associated with the late Frank Calder in hockey affairs for many years and continued the same association with managing director Mervyn Dutton.

In 1940, when border crossing and selective service problems threatened to force the major loop to retire for the duration, Frank Calder and the N.H.L. governors invited Chick to help them out. His knowledge of both United States and Canadian immigration problems and selective service legislation helped the NHL overcome countless handicaps.

SPORTS WRITER WELL SUPPORTED

MONTREAL, Aug. 25.—(CP)—Baz O'Meara, sports editor of the Montreal Star, announced in his column Thursday that he was a candidate for the job of president of the National Hockey League.

"When we were assured Red Dutton was through . . . we tossed our hat into the ring," he wrote. "Good newspaper friends like Elmer Ferguson (Montreal Herald), most of the French press, Andy Lytle (Toronto Star) and others have supported us.

In discussing possible candidates for the position made vacant by Wednesday's resignation of Dutton, O'Meara said "one report has it that a high official now in Ottawa who may be in another sphere when the war is over has been sounded out by at least one governor."

"He is not a hockey man but he is intimate with hockey problems," O'Meara added. "He has been a very good friend of the game in his executive capacity. No matter who is chosen you can depend that the governors will make a suitable selection."

ARTHUR MacNAMARA NOT CONSIDERING YET

OTTAWA, Aug. 25. — (CP) — Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, asked whether he was considering the vacant presidency of the National Hockey League, said Thursday that "I haven't had any suggestions made to me that I would be able to consider."

Mr. MacNamara, who declined to say anything further, was approached after Baz O'Meara, sports editor of the Montreal Star, announcing himself as a candidate, said one report was to the effect that a high official in Ottawa had been sounded out about the post.

Nelson Next, Followed By Green

DAVE BROCKIE, left fielder for the Dodgers, with 33 hits out of 99 official trips to the plate for an average of .333, is the Senior Baseball League's leading batter for the current season. Lester Nelson, of U.S. Signals, with 34 hits, highest number made by any player, finished in second place with .328. He has been at bat 105 times in 25 games. George Green of Dodgers placed third with .313.

Columbus Burchfield of Yanks, topped the list for stolen bases with 15, one more than Ab Superstein of Dodgers and Jim Junker, of Signallers. Manuel Dorsky of Yanks and Green tied for most runs batted in—18—while Harry Baldwin was next with 16. Mel Ottem and Ralph Morgan both drove in 15.

Bert Culver, Signals was well in front for bases on balls with a total of 27, eight more than George Green. Doug Roush of Yanks collected 14 free rides and Jack McGill and Joe Shandro 12 each.

Dodgers, leaders throughout the year in team batting, finished with an average of .258, but Yanks have been coming fast recently and wound up in second place just six points away. Arrows were third with .235 and Signallers fourth with .215.

All four clubs improved their fielding in recent games, Signallers who set the pace for most of the year regained first place which they had lost to Dodgers as at August 5, but the margin is small. Their respective figures for the year are .9173 and .9169. Yanks moved up nine points since August 5 to .915 and Arrows jumped up 13 to .902.

A minimum of 20 games was used as basis for determining the leading batter. Several players have a higher average for varying numbers of games, than either Brockie or Nelson, but these two took part in all of their respective clubs' league fixtures and hence their work at the plate has stood the test over a longer period.

Jim Junker of Signals was in 17 games and at bat 61 times, securing 23 hits for an average of .377. His team-mate Bob Sawyer also has played in 17 games and he picked up 23 hits in 67 trips for a figure of .349.

Sawyer was away on furlough for a month and did not play between July 12 and August 17. Bob was hitting .396 when he left and since has managed to connect safely only twice in 14 times at bat.

Junker joined Signallers on June 18, almost a month after the season opened and he has a remarkable record. He was injured in the game of August 8 and was out until the 20th, missing three sessions. On July 13 he was hitting .412, then ran into a short slump and dropped to .327 at August 5. Since the latter date he has driven out six hits in nine trips and unquestionably is one of the most dangerous batters in the league.

Brockie was batting only .284 as at August 5, but since has made 12 hits in 25 times at bat. On the other hand Nelson appears to have been in a slump recently. Up to August 5 he was clouting the ball at a .359 clip, but from there out he hit safely just six times in 27 attempts. And unfortunately has only two good blows to show for his last 15 trips.

All games played (including Yanks versus Aircraft Repair of May 25 and Dodgers versus Aircraft of May 28) have been taken into consideration.

Arrows have played only 23 games, Thursday night's against Yanks, which actually was the rained-out game of June 13, having been cancelled. Under the revised schedule each club was to play 24 times, Yanks and Signals had one extra due to the June 10 protested affair.

Announcement regarding the most valuable player award will be made at Tuesday night's playoff game between Dodgers and Signals.

Shown below under leaders are the top 20 batters who took part in at least 20 games. Complete individual averages for each club are given, along with team batting and fielding figures.

Enlisted Men Ousted 1-0

U.S. Officers Reach Finals In Men's Fastball Playoff

A run by Mike Milner in the fifth inning at Kingsway Park Thursday night enabled the USAAF Officers to shut out the US Enlisted Men 1-0 and move into the winals of the City Men's Fastball League playoffs.

An accident occurred at the Park last night when Charlie Heroux fractured his ankle sliding into third base in the top half of the seventh. He was the only member of the Enlisted Men's club to reach third.

Milner tallied the only run to win his own game in the fifth. He banged out a long double to centre field, advanced to third on a passed ball, waited there while Oswald bunted, and was then driven in by Russell Blaisdell who singled to left field. Oswald and Blaisdell were left on base, however, when the next batter went out.

The officers had another good scoring chance in the fourth, but fast fielding by first baseman Haynie caught Bill Tudor attempting to score.

The losers' best scoring chance was in the seventh when Heroux was hurt, but they couldn't manage to push across a run.

It was another tight pitching duel between Milner and Augie Wullenweber, each letting up only five safeties, but Milner had a little edge in the battle, striking out six to Wullenweber's four, to win.

Having won this best of three series, the Officers now meet the winner of the Central-Moose series for the title.

Ace Reporter on Gillette Cavalcade of Sports says

"AND one good reason why Blue Gillette Blades are genuine money-savers is that they are made of steel hard enough to cut glass—which means they take an edge and hold it for one swell shave after another.

"What's more, you'll find that this extra-keen, extra-durable Blue Gillette Blade not only lasts far longer than ordinary blades, but also gives you easier shaves."

JOBSTOWN, N.J., Aug. 25.—Millionaire William Helis, the turf's "golden breek", is a down-to-earth fellow who sleeps in the raw and, whenever possible, wears overalls and goes unshaved.

Being a modest, conservative guy in private life, he is appalled at thought that the public may picture him as a flashy, diamond-studded show-off because of his enthusiastic but expensive plunge into racing. This plunge was featured by such outlays as $100,000 for Valdina Orphan, $65,000 for Pericles and $55,000 for Attention.

"Friends" estimate that oilman Helis has invested more than $1,000,000 in thoroughbred improvement in the short clocking of two years, which is a record for such an abbreviated period, even in the sport of kings. "Friends" also estimate that oil-well William's daily income approximated $65,000—before Uncle Sam takes his divvy.

WILL ADMIT PRICE

BUT that's the trouble. Those estimates by "friends" smear mud on the track of the golden Greek, who may reluctantly admit the purchase price of a certain horse—to confirm the statement of auctioneer or seller—but with whom any further talk of money is strictly taboo.

Helis, new master of the near-by Rancocas Farm—the 1,200-acre "dream" layout—was a bit disgruntled as he leaned against rail of the little clocking stand watching some of his horses "work" around the sandy-loam curves of the world's longest training track—one and four-fifths miles.

The early sun etched sharply the easily galloping thoroughbreds and their exercise boy, meanwhile silhouetting the Indian-like profile of 57-year-old Helis—a bespectacled, dark-complexioned man with thick gray hair, whose conservatism at the table left just the right amount of flesh on his five-foot-ten frame. Because he was expecting visitors, he wore gray trousers and gray shirt—instead of his usual overalls. And into the breeze he blew puffs from his cigar.

"When people ask me about racing, why do they always bring in the dollars before the horses?" he inquired with the protective frown of a guilty schoolboy.

HE KNEW THE ANSWER

HE got no answer from the reporter; and he expected none. Helis knew the answer quite well. He had suddenly got horse blood in his veins two years ago—He had suddenly acquired a "love" for thoroughbreds and racing. But he was different from millions of other gee-gee addicts. He had fabulous wealth from oil with which to plunge into the fascinating pastime as owner and breeder.

His "friends" recall that Helis had lent $250,000 to the fair grounds track at New Orleans, where he has his main offices. Whenever the golden Greek would go to the track, he would sit in the dining room and not even watch the races. Until one day when he was induced to make a small wager on a certain horse, and he heard the crowd screaming the name of his horse and the name of another hangtail. He rushed from his table to the balcony and saw his horse win a stretch battle by a nose.

Something happened to him in that fraction of a second. He has never been the same since—nor has racing. Something new has been added—like when millionaire Tom Yawkey entered baseball. But Helis is still an ultra-conservative in everything not pertaining to his only weakness—horses. And it saddens the modest, unassuming millionaire to think that the public might regard him as a showoff.

Clubs Face Tough Problems

England's League Football Gets Underway on Saturday

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(CP Cable)—England's big league football, abounding in player problems and plans for peace-time play, opens its war-shabby stadia Saturday against a background of wagering that the European struggle will be won long before cup-tie games in the spring.

Peace in sight or not, this sixth season of wartime soccer probably will present more problems to the clubs than any other since the first siren wailed.

The invasion of France further depleted the players' ranks and there's no great hope among the game's leaders that first class national football as known in pre-war years can be resumed before the 1946 season at the earliest. Certainly pre-war standing won't return until at least a year after Germany quits.

FOLLOW FAMILIAR THEME

Throughout the football league which comprises the three major circuits—south, north and west—managerial plans follow a familiar theme. Most clubs have lost touch with most of their players, many of whom are serving in various war theatres. Few know what their starting lineup will be or how many of last season's regulars will be available.

At the same time optimistic club heads are looking forward to this season as a testing-time for youngsters who will be the future stars of Britain. For that reason a wide open game of high scoring and thrills appears probable.

Charlton, league South cup winners last season, can show an example of seeded player shortage. Four of the championship team are in Normandy and three more who are in the forces have been transferred from Southern to Northern England and won't be available. Four of last year's regulars of famed Arsenal Gunners, including Les Compton and Crack Centre Forward Reg Lewis, also are in France

SCOTLAND ALREADY GOING

It's practically the same in Scotland, where the professional season beat the gun on the English league by opening two weeks ago.

Buzz bombs constitute a threat, although not necessarily a serious one, to attendance figures in the London area, and some southern districts. However, there probably won't be much difference from last season when wartime attendance records were established.

The leagues found at least one ray of happiness when the government decided against any attempt to limit the size of crowds at the matches, which has sometimes been done in the past as a precaution against bombings. The clubs will rely on their spotting systems, as used in the Great Blitz, to warn spectators of imminent danger.

East-West Game Has New Hopes

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., Aug. 25. —25.—(CP)—A junior rugby club here, coached by Rich Jackson former player for Sarnia Wanderers, has approached Winnipeg teams on the possibility of arranging an east-west game for the Canadian title, it was learned Thursday.

Toronto teams had previously refused an invitation from the west to compete for the title.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By SYD THOMAS

TORONTO, Aug. 25—(CP)—Well, anyway, it was something to get rid of the suspense when Red Dutton finally confessed he was abandoning the N.H.L. to its own many and devious devices. Now all we have to chew our finger-nails about is wondering who will be the lucky successor.

Syd Thomas

Names have been mentioned, and more names will be suggested until the new league president is chosen. Hardly one has been given such an appreciative build-up as Montreal Star Editor Baz O'Meara received at the hands of Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson.

Fergie suggests Baz for his wide and far-reaching knowledge of hockey, and his ability to bring some much-needed publicity to the league. Dutton, had he stayed, could have been relied upon to inspire some good color stories in his inimitable ex-Brooklyn way, but O'Meara has the writing ability to turn out the reams of copy needed to keep the league's viewpoint in the public eye. That, of course, goes also for the other sports writers who have been mentioned for the job.

And, continues the irrepressible Fergie, his candidate has a ready and effervescent wit that might remove some of the austerity from the NHL councils, and create a bit of merriment and a laugh or two about the solemn halls.

Incidentally:

Winnipeg's 18-year-old Sandy Gibb took the eye of Olympic sprinter Jesse Owens when the speedy American athlete visited the Peg with a pair of travelling Negro baseball clubs. Sandy ran against Owens in a few exhibition matches, and Jesse dubs him a "potential champion," with no reservations . . . Messenger Maid, dowager princess of the western race tracks, will be retired from the turf this fall. She has been racing, and winning, for 10 years and has just about done her duty to her owner. . . . Football planning is getting underway in Winnipeg. Bert Warwick, assistant coach of RCAF Bombers when they won the western Canada football title last fall, has been appointed football coach at St. Paul's college. He succeeds Ches McCance, presently of the RCAF.

Browns Unlikely To Be Overtaken In Pennant Race

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The string seems to be running out fast on Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees in their race to overtake St. Louis Browns for the American League pennant.

Figures on performances thus far might indicate the string already has run out but there still remain the mathematical chances, of course, although they now soar into very high levels.

For instance, if the Browns sail on in at approximately their present .578 percentage pace on 69 games won and 51 lost, Boston Red Sox must step up their gait from .538 to .743 for their remaining 35 games, and the Yankees must leap from a .530 stride to .757 for the 37 games still remaining on their schedule.

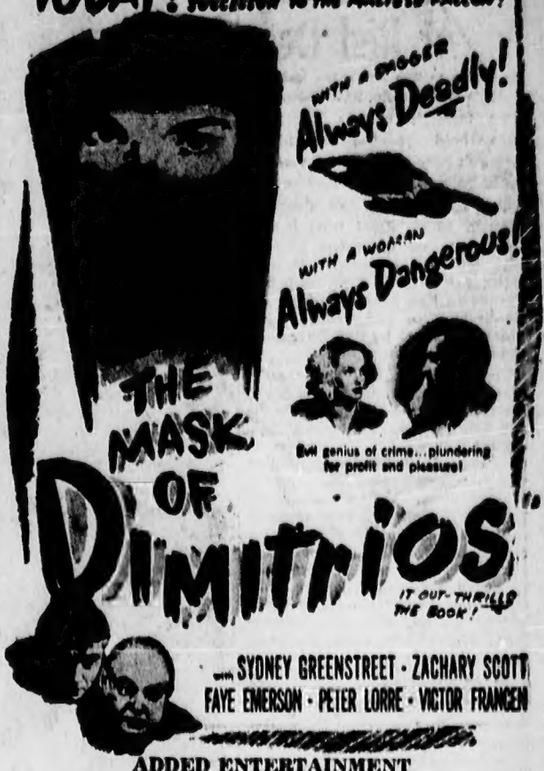

The Browns, with 34 games remaining, need win only 20 while losing 14 to finish the season at the top with 89 games won and 65 lost for a percentage of .578, unless the Red Sox can win 26 while losing only nine, or the Yankees win 28 while losing nine.

If the Red Sox or Yankees do it, they'll finish the season with 90 won, 65 lost—.584.

They might have to do even better than that because the Browns will play 23 of their remaining 34 games at home and their record at Sportsmans Park for the season is an impressive .704 per centage—38 games won and only 16 lost.

The Red Sox and Yankees each still have a long road trip.

Charity Stock Sale Success At Red Deer

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

RED DEER, Aug. 25.—The monster farmer's charity livestock sale held at the exhibition grounds here on Thursday was an outstanding success with early returns announced as running around $7,200. Final total is expected to be somewhat higher. Proceeds will go to the Kinsmen Milk for Britain Fund and the Canadian Red Cross. Expenses of the sale were taken care of by donations made by Red Deer businessmen.

The fine weather and worthy cause attracted a tremendous crowd from all parts of central Alberta and there were also buyers from distant points such as Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge. Bidding was brisk and buyers had a chance to pick up some first class stock. 766 contributions had been made to the sale. One hundred and fourteen head of cattle, many of them purebreds, were sold and 346 head of swine went through the ring. Other contributions included horses, sheep, chickens, rabbits, loads of firewood, paint, shotguns, tins of grease, etc.

TEN AUCTIONEERS

Ten auctioneers did the selling: Earl Lanyon, Edmonton; Henry Gilchrist, Calgary; Warren Cooper, Nanton; Harry Lynn, Erskine; Archie Boyce, Olds; Bert Lockhart and S. A. Baines, Innisfail; Alec. L. Sim, Red Deer; C. F. Damron, Bentley and Clyde Stauffer, of Evarts. They donated their services.

The Red Deer fair board donated a registered Jersey heifer to the sale and when it was finally sold the animal had realized $1,335 for charity. First of all the animal was donated to the fair board by Thos. Baines, Red Deer, and raffled back at the fair with proceeds going to the Red Cross. Then the board bought the heifer back from the winner and donated it to the auction sale.

George Walters, of R.R. 1, Clive, donated a donkey and it was sold a number of times to bring in a total of $121. A cowboy hat owned by M. Millard, Calgary, former sheriff at Red Deer, went on the block many times and ran up a total of $138. It is proposed to send the hat to Prime Minister Winston Churchill with a request that he be photographed wearing it so that a photo may be given to each of the buyers of the hat.

DO BRISK BUSINESS

Members of the 92nd Battery Auxiliary did a brisk business on the grounds during the day serving refreshments. They will use proceeds to send comforts to men from Red Deer and district overseas.

The sale was under the auspices of the Red Deer Kinsmen Club. In 1943 they also sponsored Milk for Britain livestock sale here which was the biggest event of its kind in western Canada. This year the club had active co-operation of the Red Deer fair board and a number of other local organizations and many prominent farmers in central Alberta. Vic Bjorkeland, Red Deer, was manager of the sale. In the evening a banquet was held at the Buffalo hotel to wind up a successful event.

Delegation Asks Federal Action To End Strike

OTTAWA, Aug. 25—(CP)—A delegation representing 3,000 striking employees of Halifax shipyards, Ltd., interviewed Labor Minister Mitchell yesterday and asked that the government take action to end the strike, which has been in progress for four weeks.

Mr. Mitchell had no comment to make upon the meeting, but A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor and one of those attending, said the delegates urged that the company be asked to meet the requests of the workers or, alternatively, that a government controller be put in charge of the yards.

HARRISBURG, Ore., Aug. 25.—(AP)—A feminine flagman on a highway construction job decided it was too hot for overalls and donned a midriff-exposing swim suit. Shortly the state highway commission sent out a representative to find out why traffic on the Pacific Highway was all gummed up.

New Salvation Army Activity Gets Under Way

Salvation Army Excelsior-Making Plant Officially Opened by Mayor

A wartime effort that will become a post-war project in Edmonton, had its beginning Thursday afternoon when the newest venture of the Salvation Army, an excelsior-making plant, was officially opened by Mayor John W. Fry, in the presence of Army officials and city businessmen.

Mayor Fry told the gathering that the Salvation Army was doing a fine work in the city, and he recalled what that organization had done for the people of Edmonton in the time of depression. The city, he said, was grateful to the Salvation Army and was willing and anxious to co-operate with it.

OFFERS CONGRATULATIONS

He congratulated Brigadier Rufus Raymer, divisional commander for Alberta, and Major Richard Shaw, manager of the plant and superintendent of the organization's hostel for men. The speaker also referred to the pleasing appearance of the new building. Maj. Shaw responded briefly.

Among those who attended the opening ceremonies were Brig. Raymer, Capt. H. Hamilton, W. J. Bown, Kenneth Alton, Jack Congdon, John Martland, Edward C. Fisher, James Walker and H. H. Cooper of the salvage advisory board, J. J. Sophus, superintendent of salvage, war services council, northern Alberta.

Housed in a newly-erected fireproof building of concrete, the large paper-shredding machine will turn waste paper products into filler for packing cases, packing houses and machine parts, as well as a host of other and varied uses.

LIKE GRAIN THRESHER

The shredding machine resembles a grain thresher, with a long shute for the processed paper to leave the machine and drop into a large pile. The shreds are handled with a pitchfork when being transferred to the baler, which presses the waste paper into bundles of about 180 pounds. Waste rags, when being pressed, can be made into bundles of approximately 400 pounds. The plant can handle about two tons of paper through the shredder, daily.

The creation of the plant adds another institution to the long list of Salvation Army projects, and in the newest venture, seven full-time employees will be needed to operate the plant, manage collection of waste materials, operate the shredder and power baler.

The concrete structure is 90 feet long and 28 feet wide, and is located on 98 street, directly behind the Army's hostel for men. There are three divisions to the building, with a garage at the front, storage space in the centre and the plant proper at the rear.

TO MANAGE PLANT

Major Richard Shaw, superintendent of the hostel, will manage the new plant and continue with his work in the former place at the same time.

Not unknown to many who are classed as "down-and-outs", Major Shaw is also responsible for prison and police court work, assisting destitute persons, operating a dining hall and lodgings, caring for stranded persons by advancing transportation fares and assisting discharged prisoners.

During 1943, said Major Shaw, the Salvation Army hostel provided lodgings for 38,268 men, served 48,192 men with meals, distributed 1,430 garments among them. Another 390 homeless men received Christmas dinners or Christmas cheer, last year, while the same department looked after 100 children with toys. Every jail occupant was remembered last Yuletide.

The Army assisted many men in getting work, even if of only temporary nature, and 101 situations were filled through its efforts.

During the past year, the Salvation Army interviewed 624 prisoners, of whom 353 were given meals, and another 141 provided with beds.

HANDLE CORRESPONDENCE

Relatives of prisoners who could not write themselves, turned to the Army for help. The organization handled 157 pieces of correspondence for such persons, as well as taking care of long distance telephone calls.

This, said Maj. Shaw, is but a part of the work being done by the Salvation Army. Another branch still, looks after women and young girls.

It is for the purpose of having funds with which to carry on the work in the men's social department that this unit had been instituted, said Maj. Shaw.

Full Freedom In Gathering News Is Urged

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Determined and vigorous measures to assure truthful news in all countries are urged by Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, and Christopher Chancellor, general manager of Reuters, in separate articles in the September issue of "Free World" magazine, out today.

The "elemental, essential step" to a durable peace, says Mr. Cooper, "is the assurance of the free and untrammelled flow of news between nations."

In his article, "Free News—First Step in Peace," Mr. Cooper writes:

"It is a shocking revelation to most people when they are informed that the great masses of intelligent thinking people throughout the world have had no adequate and effective means of knowing the truth about each other.

MUST TAKE ACTION

"Nor will they have such means after this war, unless determined, thoughtful and strenuous effort is immediately applied to this long overlooked problem."

He asserts that "systematic and purposeful distortion, perversion and chocking of the news channels" has long been a common practice over much of the world, carried out by secret arrangements between foreign news agencies influenced by governments and other interests.

Now, however, Mr. Cooper points out, the entire background has changed, referring particularly to the change in the British agency, Reuters, which became a co-operative operated mutually for the newspapers of Great Britain three years ago, and to the disappearance of several other foreign agencies during the war.

RESPONSIBLE TO PUBLIC

"While government control of the flow of news and information must be prevented," Mr. Cooper continues, "major governments of the United Nations should lend their benediction to the development of independent news agencies responsible only to the publication, radio stations and other outlets they serve, which in turn are responsible to their public.

"They can now well advance the principle that the peace settlements will include guarantees of the right of men to get, send and publish the news."

In his article, "Truth in News," Mr. Chancellor endorses proposals of James Lawrence Fly, chairman of the federal communications commission, for adequate, unrestricted communications facilities throughout the world, freely available at low, uniform rates.

Western Harvest Going Smoothly

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25.—Seasonable harvest weather prevailed over most of the grain growing regions this last week and cutting of all grains is in full swing, with progress varying. In some districts harvest has just nicely begun, while in others, and especially those hit by drought and sawfly ravages, cutting is all but completed, according to the weekly crop report of the department of agriculture of the Canadian National Railways.

Threshing has commenced, in some southern areas and the outrun so far is satisfactory. Early frosts struck more northerly districts, but the extent of damage will not be known until grain is threshed. Scarcity of farm help is a problem in many districts but it is amazing how smoothly the harvest is progressing.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25.—Generally favorable weather has added progress of harvesting work throughout the west though temperatures have been somewhat higher in Alberta and Saskatchewan than in Manitoba, says the weekly report issued today by T. S. Acheson, general agricultural agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

City Constable Wins Promotion

Promotion of Constable Hamilton "Tiny" Lyttle to the post of patrol sergeant was announced Friday by Chief Constable Reginald Jennings. Sgt. Lyttle has been a member of the city police force since February 1919.

The sobriquet by which Sgt. Lyttle is known by all members of the force, as well as many private citizens, does not indicate that he is of small stature. Sergeant Lyttle stands more than six feet tall in his stocking feet.

He served overseas in the First Great War with the 49th Battalion. When the present war broke, he again offered his services and for a short time acted as a sergeant before being discharged.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

What is your opinion of the estimated yield of Edmonton district crops this year, namely 30 bushels an acre for wheat and barley and 50 bushels for oats?

THE ANSWERS

HAROLD NORRINGTON, salesman: Provided the estimate is accurate, and I presume it is, the yield will be satisfactory, and more especially when one remembers the aggregate wheat yield for the province is 112,000,000 bushels.

GEORGE THORNTON, trucker: An average yield of 30 bushels an acre of wheat should prove satisfactory both to the grower and to the consumer. It will ensure a large total crop and will bring in a good return to the primary producer.

BILL GOODWIN, clerk: I am not much of an agricultural expert, but I believe that 30 bushels an acre for wheat—and that is the main grain commodity—should make a successful crop year.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Looking over some hands on my desk, I just ran across an interesting one that came up in the Masters Individual Tournament. It is a wonder that this hand did not knock George Rapee out of the running, but in spite of it, he won the championship. In the Masters Individual, every player must play with every other player as a partner. On this particular hand, Joseph E. Cain, of Indianapolis (South), was playing with Peter Leventritt, of New York, against Harry Fishbein (West) and George Rapee.

	Leventritt ♠ J 7 4 ♥ A 8 4 ♦ A K 10 8 ♣ A 6 3
Fishbein ♠ Q 10 3 2 ♥ 9 ♦ J 8 5 4 2 ♣ 10 7 4	N W E S Dealer	Rapee ♠ A 9 6 ♥ 10 7 6 3 ♦ 2 ♣ Q 9 8 5 2
	Cain ♠ K 8 5 ♥ K Q J 5 ♦ Q 9 7 6 ♣ K J

Duplicate — None vul

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 N T	Pass	4 N T	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	6 N T	Pass
Opening ♠ 2			35

When Leventritt jumped to four no trump on the second round of bidding, Cain was a little bit stumped. After all, he lives in Indianapolis, the home of Easley Blackwood, originator of the Blackwood convention. Deciding that Leventritt was using Blackwood, Cain responded with five clubs to show no aces. But Leventritt was not using the Blackwood convention, and assuming that Cain was showing him a second suit, he promptly went to six no trump.

Cain won the opening spade lead with the king. Now his only chance to make the slam was to finesse the jack of clubs, which is exactly what he did.

One of the biggest thrills Joe Cain gets out of bridge is to get into a freak contract—and make it.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Mother Treats 20 Year Old Daughter Like Baby

Girl Resents Supervision of Her Life! Is Old Enough Now to Know What, Why and How She Wants to Do Things

A girl said to me the other day: "I am 20 years old. I am a college graduate. I have a good job and am self-supporting. I am not a case of arrested development, yet my mother treats me exactly as if I were a feeble-minded infant. She tells me what I shall wear, what I shall eat, where I shall go and to be sure to be home by ten o'clock at night. And she feels that she has a perfect right to read my letters and listen in on my telephone calls.

MUST BE WATCHED

This endless supervision over my every act isn't because she suspects me of having any wild impulses or any yearning for the primrose path. It is simply because she has never seen me as an intelligent adult. To her I am still a little baby girl who will make herself sick on lollipops if she isn't watched and who must not be permitted to play with the naughty little boy next door.

One of the grievences of mothers nowadays is that their daughters don't want to live at home. As soon as they finish school, they get a job. They insist on going off and setting up a little two-by-four apartment with some other girl, where they have to sleep on a bumpy couch and eat the messes they cook themselves after they come home from a hard day's work. Mother can't understand it and she fears the worst.

"But her Sally hasn't left home to become a wild woman. She has left home to get away from mother's babying and because she can't stand any longer being told what to do and what not to do, and because she is tired of having to have an argument with mother every time she goes out of the house about where she is going, whom she is going with and when she is coming home. Funny, isn't it, that mothers never realise that their daughters grow up and that they want to be treated as grownups?"

"The whole relationship between mothers and daughters is a queer one," I replied. "Because they are both women, they are supposed to be particularly close to each other but sex can be a bar as well as a bond and no mother ever understands her daughter unless the daughter is a rubber stamp of herself. The woman who was a belle in her day has no sympathy with high-browed Sally who wants a career instead of going to parties.

"Also, every woman is jealous of any other woman interfering in the way she runs her home, even if it is her own daughter, and that is why Mother is always relieved and pleased when daughter gets married and sets up her own home. Nothing in family life is more curious than the fact that as long as a daughter remains unmarried, her mother treats her as if she were a little child and not a very bright one at that. But the minute she acquires a husband she becomes an oracle whom Mother quotes. Mothers and daughters never have any real companionship until daughter enters the lodge of married women.

Women are queer creatures, but perhaps there is always a reason for their queerness.

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Use chicken pot pie as the main dish for your Sunday dinner. But add to its taste and healthfulness by getting several Victory Garden products into the menu, too.

A chopped green bowl salad is a refreshing surprise. Rub a large bowl with a clove of garlic. Then put in well-washed, dried and chilled greens—lettuce, escarole, romaine, watercress, chopped parsley and chopped celery leaves plus a suspicion of onion, a few green herbs and if desired 2 fresh tomatoes, quartered. Just before serving, pour in French dressing.

CHICKEN POT PIE WITH DUMPLINGS

Four to 5-pound stewing chicken, 2 quarts boiling water, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon sage or poultry seasoning, 2 carrots, ½ pound small white onions, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter or chicken fat, ½ cup milk (about).

Clean and wash chicken. Cut into joints. Place in large kettle. Add boiling water, salt, sage. Bring to boil, cover; turn heat low and simmer 2 to 3 hours until tender. Add carrots sliced rather thick to resemble in size the little white onions. Add carrots and onions. Continue cooking while dumplings are mixed.

To mix dumplings: sift together flour, baking powder, salt. Cut the shortening into the flour. Stir in the milk just sufficient to make a soft but not sticky dough. Roll out or pat to ¼ inch thickness; cut in little rounds about the size of the white onions (use a very small biscuit cutter for this, or better, use the centre of your doughnut cutter—this centre is removable in many cutters). Drop the cut dumplings into the quickly boiling stew. Cover tightly, turn heat low so that pot will not boil over, then boil 10 minutes without lifting lid. To serve, lift chicken, dumplings and vegetables to large tureen or platter. If gravy is not sufficiently thickened by the dumplings, mix 2 tablespoons flour with water to make a smooth paste. Stir into broth. Cook until smooth and creamy. Allow ½ pound of chicken per person for serving.

Sunday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Cantaloupe, ready-to-eat cereal, bacon and eggs, whole wheat toast, butter, jelly, coffee, milk.

DINNER: Chicken pot pie with dumplings, seasoned with sage, baked potatoes, corn on cob, chopped green salad, enriched bread, butter, apple brown Betty with vanilla ice cream, coffee, milk.

SUPPER: Chicken tomato bouillon in cups, soya crackers, cold sliced ham, hashed creamed potatoes, molded vegetable salad, baker's rolls, butter, berries, cookies, iced tea, milk.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It's easy for an individual with no children to say smugly: "If this were MY child," as if in such case, she would act very differently from the erring mother. The probability is that in like circumstances she would be equally blind.

Mrs. B. G. has two daughters and seems unaware of her marked partiality to the younger one. "My oldest girl," she writes, "is a lively youngster of 11 and thoroughly capable of being a lot of help around the house. But I cannot get her to help me at all and if I force her she is so mean and antagonistic.

"My youngest daughter of 9 is just the opposite. She loves to help me. In fact she prefers my company to any of her associates. My older girl wants to be on the go all the time and would never be at home if this could be managed.

"I feel that in some way it must be my fault, as my unmarried sister thinks, but I seem helpless to change her disposition. She does not want to co-operate with her sister or me."

And she won't so long as you, as a team, are leagued against her. She will continue to refuse to cater to you, because she no doubt feels the younger girl has made herself the favorite by just such methods and she would scorn to imitate them.

Of course, you love this older daughter but you may forget to tell her this and instead keep reminding her how different she is from sister. That does not spur the child to greater endeavors it sours her on being like sister at all.

Choose some of the skills and talents in which the older is superior and play up those. Set up a list of tasks to be completed daily, well within the capacity of both children and do not put them on the basis of "helping Mother," but of tasks to be done as obligations as members of a family. Both should be interested in a nice and orderly home.

Once you see your own part in promoting your daughter's defiance and contrariness I feel sure you can take steps to change them.

Our leaflet, "Home Tasks," suggests the tasks that may be expected of children as they grow. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

Association Seeks Authority to Act For Civil Servants

REGINA, Aug. 25—(CP)—The Saskatchewan government services association in a brief submitted to Premier T. C. Douglas Wednesday stated that while it was now recognized as representing the civil servants it desired further to be accepted as the sole bargaining agency by the provincial government. The association also set out a number of detailed recommendations for improving the position of civil servants in Saskatchewan.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

SO YOU STILL HAVE YOUR TONSILS

Tonsillectomy is a mongrel medican term (part Latin tonsilla and part Greek ektome) meaning removal of the entire tonsil, excision of the tonsil, extirpation of the tonsil. Tonsillotomy means excision, cutting away or removal of a portion of tonsil or, when done with the guillotine or combination guillotine and cold snare it is popularly known as "clipping" the tonsils.

I can think of just one condition which would warrant even an attempt to remove the entire tonsil if I were the patient—and that is cancer of the tonsil.

The operation in which the surgeon attempts to remove the entire tonsil (tonsillectomy) is a major operation and it subjects the patient to serious risk in every instance.

The operation in which the doctor removes or cuts away part of the tonsil (tonsillotomy or "clipping the tonsils") is a minor, office affair, rather less formidable and less painful than extraction of a tooth, and it subjects the patient to no more serious risk than does extraction of a tooth.

In my judgment, based on years of hospital and private practice and years of study, simple tonsillotomy (or "clipping of the tonsils") together with the adenoids if the pharyngeal or third tonsil is enlarged as well as the faucial or visible throat tonsils is the only surgical treatment that is "indicated" in the case of a child or youth with tonsil and adenoid hypertrophy, enlargement, overgrowth. In actual practice this treatment proves satisfactory in practically all instances where it is really indicated.

Clipping the tonsils — and I use this popular term advisedly—is indicated much less frequently than many brass "nose and throat specialists", old time practitioners, little tin doctors (diagnosing nurses), and misguided parents in the recent past have been disposed to believe. And here when I say "clipping the tonsils" I mean not only guillotine and snare removal of a portion of the enlarged or hypertrophied tonsil and adenoid "vegetation" if there are "adenoids" too, but also the major operation called "tonsillectomy"—for in fact this atrocious procedure practically never removes the entire tonsil, which is perhaps fortunate for the victim. Examination of the patient who has been subjected to tonsillectomy, no matter how eminent the "specialist" who "performed" the feat, generally reveals considerable tonsil tissue present in the throat. Mind, though this does not signify that the operation failed or that any further effort to remove the vestiges of tonsil tissue is advisable. It merely shows that the "specialists" who talk so ponderously about "getting all of the tonsil" are talking through their hats.

Debunker

Some people who try every Summer to acquire a coat of fashionable tan will never achieve their desire, for there are many people who do not and cannot tan. These people are called "Heliophobes." They are morbidly sensitive to the sun's rays, and their skin will redden, blister and burn—but it will never tan. Their skin lacks the ability to manufacture the pigment we call tan. Heliophobes often experience a depressed and "blue" feeling when subjected to the direct rays of the sun. Blonde people are more likely than others to be heliophobes; this being common among Nordics.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Grandmother: "It's nice to be 60—everyone is so thoughtful of me."

Mother: "Im glad I'm 35—children the age of ours are such fun."

Daughter: "I'm glad I'm 6, because I can go to school."

Grandmother: "I hate to get old. I wish I were young again."

Mother: "Well, I wish I were 18 and going to dances again."

Daughter: "I wish I was a baby like brother is."

Living with adults who accept and appreciate their present age helps children overcome jealousy of younger brothers and sisters.

States Future Of Agriculture Being Decided

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Aug. 25—(CP)—"What happens to world agriculture after this war depends largely upon what has happened at Hot Springs and Bretton Woods, and what is now happening at Dumbarton Oaks, Professor Robert Rae, agricultural attache of the British embassy at Washington and technical advisor to the British high commissioner at Ottawa, said in an interview yesterday.

Prof. Rae is visiting the Dominion experimental farm here, seeing Alberta irrigation projects and crops grown under the ditch and meeting with technical agriculturists of the city and district. He is the successor of Prof. A. Scott Watson, who visited Lethbridge in the spring of 1942 while holding the same post in the British diplomatic service. Prof. Scott Watson returned to Britain last spring.

POST-WAR OUTLOOK

Speaking of trade after the war, Prof. Rae said it all depends upon the consciousness and understanding of world peoples. There should be no such thing as food surpluses while people anywhere are starving, he said. "Of course, it is easy to say such things, but what a tremendous job it is to bring them about.

"That is why I say that Hot Springs, with its United Nations food conference, Bretton Woods with its monetary conference and now Fumbarton Oaks where the great powers are seeking a formula for maintaining world peace after this war, are so important to us all, and very important to you people in Western Canada in particular.

"You have done such a marvellous job in food production during the war that you can realize how great the job of post-war distribution of food surpluses is going to be. The word "surplus" in connection with food is an anachronism. There is no such thing while there are starving and under-fed peoples in the world, and we know there are many such peoples in the so-called backward countries.

NOT EASY PROBLEMS

"I do not make the mistake of thinking that all this problem of bringing up the nutritional standard of the low-standard countries is going to be easy. It is going to take years. It is going to take public understanding in every country. The high-standard countries must be prepared to help, and we must remember that trade is a two-way affair.

"If we can keep these things in mind I cannot see why we cannot succeed, and why Western Canada, with its tremendous food-producing possibilities, cannot show great progress and considerable prosperity in the years to come.

British War Brides Arrive; Get First Sight of New Home

By The Canadian Press

British war brides, thrilled and a little timid at their first sight of Canada, have arrived in the Dominion after crossing the Atlantic on a former luxury liner. Hundreds of Canadian servicemen—army, navy and air force—were aboard the ship, too, as well as nursing sisters, women of the RCAF, and men of the merchant navy.

Most of the young English brides had been preceded home by their servicemen husbands, back from the fighting fronts; others will wait until their men come back, from overseas "after the duration."

A few lucky couples were together on the voyage, envy of the rest, and the husbands of some will never return from the battlefields of Europe. None of them had ever seen Canada before.

CHILDREN ABOARD

There were many other new Canadians aboard, too, most of them between 18 and 20 months old. They added a touch of domesticity to the gray austerity of the troopship.

Joan Cameron was preparing to leave for Carlyle, Sask., where she will visit the parents of her husband, Signalman Lloyd W. Cameron, killed in France. She anticipated some difficulties with the "so broad" Canadian accent, but added the British were gradually getting used to it with so many of Canada's sons on the fortress island.

Mrs. M. L. A. Thompson, who comes from Bournemouth, was going to Swift Current, Sask.

Among the war couples were Major and Mrs. R. R. Laird, whose story reads like a novel. Major Laird, youthful RCAMC officer of Victoria, B.C., met his wife during a blitz on Jan. 14, 1941. Born Francesca Bahrle, she was a British film star who appeared in pictures made by Sir Alexander Korda, Fox-British, and other English movie companies. She was also a pioneer star in the war-halted British television industry. "She was the first girl I met in England," Major Laird said.

A few days before the day set for their marriage, Laird went to Dieppe, where he lost his right leg. Captured, he spent 16 months in German prison camps.

Finally Major Laird was repatriated in the first group of men to return to England. There he married Francisca. There, too, he learned of the modern miracles being performed by Allied surgeons with artificial limbs.

"As a doctor," he stated, "I can say the outlook for amputees will be brighter and brighter with the developments which will take place in the next few years in that work.

Soothsayers See War End

By KAY FORD

Edmonton fortune-tellers are doing a rushing business these days. They could have saved Churchill a lot of worry if at any time he was in doubt as to the day of final victory.

The war will end not sooner than Sept. 7 at 2 p.m., and not later than the day before Christmas, 1944, the soothsayers say.

Japan will collapse like a house of cards, and a rich husband, two children and a home on the prairies will be forthcoming.

Not only in the human breast does hope spring eternal but from the lips of teacup readers, fortune tellers, palmists, clairvoyants, astrologists and psychic readers.

NEVER TOO RUSHED

Edmonton fortune tellers are never too rushed to stop and consider the momentous question, "When will the war end?" and are continuously asked this question by a flood of women without men, parcel-laden housewives and grandmothers too old for war work.

Some fortune tellers gain added refreshment from an extra glance into their crystal ball, ensconced on a scrap of well-worn black velvet; others admit they have already calculated it by a serious study of astrology, but all agre the war will end—soon.

One elderly palmist said "the whole world will jump up and down for joy because the war will end on Sept. 7 at 2 p.m.

The end of October is a favorite time, and certainly before Christmas, with one seer feeling it will end about the same time the last war did, near November 11.

All varieties of soothsayers are patronized by avid seekers into the future who find a relief for war-tension nerves in the rosy prophecies of soothing experts. They have the cards read, their teacups read, flatter ego with a palm reading, and still any stirrings of cynicism by a dip into scientifically-flavored pronouncement of astrologists and numerologists.

WAR END

Numerological prophets have evolved a mathematical table showing that the war will end on Sept. 7 at 2 p.m.—just like the palmist. They take the year born, the age, the year they took office and the years in office of Churchill, Hitler, Roosevelt, Il Duce, Stalin and Tojo. Each set of figures adds up to 3888. One half of 3888 equals 1944 and one-half of that equals 927, which makes 9-7-2, or Sept. 7 at 2 p.m.

The only thing wrong with it is that any similar set of figures for any man, woman or child will add up to the same thing.

Fortune tellers who practice at home are booked in advance for a week or more, and customers who are not in their restaurant seats by 2 p.m., when the fortune-telling day begins—will find themselves 12 tables behind the teacup reader and a good hour away from their fortunes.

But war or no war, the standard fortune for a woman is still the same as it was when gypsies had their palms crossed with silver—I see a dark, handsome man.

Miss Henrietta-Maria Kantor Weds at Sacred Heart Church

Picardy pink and white gladioli decorated the altar of Sacred Heart church Thursday at 9:30 a.m. for the marriage of Miss Henrietta-Maria Kantor, younger daughter of Mr and Mrs. Adalbert Kantor of Edmonton and Cpl. Joseph Roland Patenaude, RCAF, Ottawa, son of Mrs H. E. Patenaude and the late Mr Patenaude of Edmonton. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor M. G. O'Gorman officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father, was graceful in bridal gown styled by her mother. The frock of pale ivory chiffon over taffeta was fashioned with a long torso waistline from which a Spanish ruffled skirt fell softly into a train. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline edged in a tiny ruffle with soft shirring at the shoulders, and long fitted sleeves ending in a ruffle. Her fine white veil of illusion tulle followed the lines of her skirt, ending in a long train. She wore fine white lace gloves and carried a white prayer book with long white ribbon streamers, trimmed with chiffon bows and rosettes.

BRIDESMAID

Miss Rollande Trottier attended as bridesmaid wearing a toe-length frock of pale lavendar sheer, styled with a full skirt gathered at the waistline to a quilted girdle. The fitted bodice was made with a high neckline and long fitted sleeves. She wore a pink Dutch cap trimmed with pink rosettes and pink veiling. Completing her ensemble she carried a colonial bouquet of sweetpeas and forget-me-nots, centred with gardenia.

Little Simone Lavalee was flower girl. She wore a frock of pale pink sheer made with a full skirt to the floor from a high shirred bodice, trimmed with tiny white bows. The bodice was made with a high round neckline, and short puffed sleeves. She wore a halo of pink bows ending in streamers over the back of her hair, and carried a tiny colonial bouquet of roses and sweetpeas.

Napolean Pepin was best man, and Percy D. Ball ushered the guests to the pews, which were marked with white bows.

Mrs. Noel Turgeon played the wedding music and during the nuptial mass, Miss Madeline Turgeon was soloist. A trio with Miss Theresa Trottier, and masters Bernard and Pierre Turgeon also sang during mass. Miss Trottier sang "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

RECEPTION

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 10615 95 street.

Mrs. Kantor, receiving with the bridal party, was dressed in an afternoon frock of pale gray crepe over navy. The skirt was made with a panel of faggoting down the front. The bodice featured a V neckline with a faggoted collar and three-quarter length sleeves. Her hat was a small navy straw model and her accessories were also in navy. She wore a shoulder corsage of red roses. Mrs. Patenaude the bridegroom's mother chose a street-length frock of lilac crepe, made with a draped skirt, three-quarter length sleeves, and a square neckline trimmed with tiny bows in the corners. Her hat was a black plush model trimmed with a burnt ostrich egret, and her gloves were in lilac shade. She wore a corsage of pale cream roses.

BRIDE'S TABLE

The bride's table was set in white damask linen, centered with a three-tiered pillared wedding cake. Tall white tapers in silver holders, and bowls of pale pink sweetpeas completed the table decorations. Mrs. P. D. Ball, Mrs. T. C. Schofield, Miss Justina Murray, and Miss Grace Brunton assisted in serving.

Maurice Lavallee proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple left later by motor on a wedding trip to Jasper and the Columbia Icefields. On their return they will go on to Ottawa where they will take up residence temporarily where the bridegroom is stationed. For travelling the bride changed to a rose rabbit's wool tailleur. Her hat was a small fur felt model in brown and her accessories were also in brown. She topped her ensemble with a taupe topcoat.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—(AP)—Sellers had a shade the best of a wishy-washy argument in today's stock market and many leaders did nothing much or slipped to slightly lower levels in one of the slowest sessions of the last three months.

The ticker tape loafed from the start, with transfers for the full proceedings approximating 500,000 shares. Fractional declines were reduced or cancelled in several cases near the close and there was a smattering of minor gains.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, Aug. 25—(CP)—Gains were scored in nearly all sections of the stock market today. Industrials finished generally firm, home rails strengthened and oils, especially Romanian issues, moved ahead. Internationals, however, were inclined toward the downside, but British government issues were firm.

Wheat Steady on Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Aug. 25—(AP)—September wheat held steady today but other grain futures sold off in a dull trade.

July wheat at one time was 1⅛c below the previous close and at a new seasonal low. Most of the late wheat trade was confined to spreading with the September taken at 1½ cents premium against sales of December. Because the trade was small, July wheat reacted quickly to orders on either side of the market.

There was no definite trend in the rye market and the trade was principally by local operators. Prices rallied about noon, then slipped slightly in the last half hour.

At the close wheat was ¼ higher to ⅜ lower, oats were off ⅜ to 1¼, rye was off ⅜ to 1⅛, barley was ¼ to ¾ lower.

Mr. Lovell said peak of the epidemic now has passed and the situation is under control.

Greece Demands Forces of Allies Occupy Bulgaria

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

CAIRO, Aug. 25—(AP)—The Greek government last night demanded Bulgaria's occupation by Allied forces to guarantee her punishment for "crimes" against Greeks as Bulgarian capitulation in the wake of Romania's was widely predicted.

Although Bulgaria is not at war against Russia it was hinted in Soviet quarters that Red Army divisions driving into Romania might press into Bulgaria and become a force of occupation there unless Sofia surrenders soon to Britain and the United States.

There were among Greek demands made public last night:

1. "Strategical guarantee of the northern frontier (Greece's) so that the keys to her house (Thrace and Macedonia) may not be held in foreign hands, especially Bulgarian hands."

2. "Punishment of Bulgarian rulers and military chiefs and also all of those who have committed crimes against the population of Macedonia and Thrace."

3. "Occupation of Bulgaria by armies of the United Nations as a guarantee for execution of the sanctions which will be applied on her."

War Production Board Official Resigns in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The lid blew off a bitter row in the War Production Board yesterday when Charles E. Wilson, executive vice-chairman, resigned and charged that he was the victim of "unfair attacks and criticisms" by aides of Chairman Donald M. Nelson.

Mr. Wilson, former president of General Electric Company, accused Mr. Nelson's personal assistants of inspiring stories that he was acting as spokesman for big business and opposing plans for reconverting industry to a peacetime basis.

"The dissension within the organization does harm to the war production effort and, therefore, to the country," Mr. Wilson wrote President Roosevelt. "I am unwilling to be a party to such a controversy."

Name Officials For Operation Of Two Hotels

Veteran hotelman and for more than 25 years associated with the late Abraham Cristall, Robert E. Noble has been appointed manager of the Royal George hotel, and supervisor of the Leland hotel, it was announced Friday by the trustees administering the estate.

Rolli Choquette, for many years chief clerk at the Leland hotel, has been appointed manager of that hotel, and A. D. Trussler, who has been with the Royal George hotel since it was built, has been appointed superintendent to look after the properties in the estate holdings.

POSTS CONFIRMED

These appointments were confirmed at a meeting of the trustees of the estate held on Friday. The trustees are Theodore Cristall, who has been associated actively with the Royal George hotel for 17 years, and who will continue an active interest in its management; Max Cristall who has been operating the Leland, and who will continue in executive management of that hotel.

H. L. Baltzan is the third trustee, and he brings to the post a background of business training and experience. He is a graduate of the University of Alberta with special training in economics, and a post graduate course at Columbia University in business training.

On completion of this education he entered business here with the Crescent Furniture Co., as president and general manager of that firm, a position he still holds.

PLAN NO CHANGES

The trustees announced that the estate properties will be operated as an entity, and that there are no immediate plans for expansion or improvements until conditions and circumstances warrant. There will be no staff changes for the present, but provision is made to re-employ men now serving with the armed forces who desire to return to their former jobs.

Mr. Noble, in an interview Friday stated, that it "had been his privilege to be associated with the late Mr. Cristall for the past 25 years, and I look forward to working with the younger generation for the further improvement of the hotel services."

Labor Shortage For Harvesting In West Canada

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25—(CP)—A labor shortage for harvesting one of Western Canada's largest crops was reported today by farm labor officials, who estimated another 6,000 men will be needed. Wages range from $4.50 to $8 in Manitoba to as high as $8 in the other two provinces.

Cutting, combining and threshing has become general in southern sections of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. A few southern Saskatchewan districts reported work being held up due to lack of stookers.

In southern Manitoba cutting was 75 to 100 per cent completed, in Saskatchewan 25 per cent and one-third in the Alberta foothills. Wheat yields have averaged 25 bushels an acre in Manitoba, 19 in Saskatchewan and 12 to 25 in southern Alberta.

WHEAT PRODUCTION

Wheat production for the three provinces is estimated at about 450,000,000 bushels compared with 277,000,000 bushels a year ago. Coarse grains also are expected to be considerably above those of 1943, except in the case of flax.

In addition to shortage of farm help, Dominion officials are hoping to eliminate a grain bottleneck at the head of the lakes where scarcity of unloaders has tied up several thousand bushels of grain in railway cars and slowed up movement to world markets.

Some 225 eastern harvesters have gone to prairie fields along with soldiers, airmen, sailors, Indians from reserves, and civilians totalling more than 4,000.

Some members of air schools at Brandon, Portage la Prairie, and Macdonald, in Manitoba are working between 5 p.m. and sundown in the fields.

Eastern excursions that brought several thousand workers west in the last three years are scheduled to begin early next week.

Fifteen hundred men are wanted in Manitoba, an estimated 2,000 for Saskatchewan and 2,500 for Alberta.

2,500 ALREADY PLACED

James McNair, director of Dominion-provincial farm help, reported 2,500 men already placed on farms.

About 300 soldiers and sailors already are at work in Alberta grainfields and agriculture officials said a large number of civilians aiding Saskatchewan and Manitoba farmers will arrive soon.

Wages generally average $5 a day in Alberta with tractor operators getting $6 and combine men as high as $10 in the Lethbridge district. Calgary reported a surplus of farm labor on hand with the few men sent out accepting prevailing wage rates. Lethbridge also reported sufficient help on hand.

Allies in Control Of Major Portion Of Pacific Ocean

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The major part of the Pacific ocean now is under Allied control, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said last night in a broadcast from Pearl Harbor, and navy patrol search planes daily make it necessary for the Japanese to enter the portion left to him "at his peril."

The commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet and Pacific ocean areas said the Pacific offensive is attaining the essential objective of winning control of the sea approaches to the Japanese empire in order to seyer ocean routes over which the enemy must move men and supplies.

When the goal is achieved, the "co-prosperity sphere will then become a non-prosperity sphere," the admiral said.

McCoy Health Service

Inasmuch as the menstrual function is a normal funtion, it should be attended by no distress and no sign of adbnormality. However, in many women the menses are marked by a profuse flow, and when this abnormal state is allowed to continue there may be produced an undesirable effect upon the general health.

Usually, in addition to the increased flow, the patient will notice other symptoms such as headache, general weakness, trembling of the legs, and perhaps backache after being on the feet for any length of time. There may also be an inability to concentrate on mental work, a slowing down of the mental powers and a marked tendency toward "the blues."

Fortunately, in many cases, profuse menstruation arises from causes which can be found and corrected with the result that the patient may be freed from distress.

Some of the most common causes of this condition are as follows: first, congestion within the pelvis itself; second, the presence of tears or erosions following childbirth; third, the presence of tumors or growth; fourth, excessive or violent exercise at the time of the menses; fifth, chronic inflammatory disease of the pelvic organs; sixth, nervousness; and seventh, an oversecretion of the ovarian hormone.

Other causes are: a lack of certain elements in the blood which produces a slowness of the clotting power or coagulating power of the blood; a misplacement of the uterus backward; and possibly the presence of severe constipation, which will induce pressure within the pelvis.

The patient with a tendency toward profuse menstruation may find such factors as exposure to cold or damp, nervous strain, worry, an unsatisfactory expression of the mating urge, and being forced to stand for long hours, will serve to increase the difficulty.

The treatment to be used must of course depend upon the individual case. When the trouble is due to a tear, or to an erosion or to small growths, the examining physician may find it necessary to advise surgical repairs, cauterization, curettement, or other measures as he deems necessary. When it is due to nervous tension or a lowered health state affecting the entire body, or to severe constipation, the treatment must fit the underlying condition.

As a general rule, the earlier treatment is started for this condition, the better off the patient is. I therefore suggest that whenever the sign of profuseness manifests itself, that the patient seek expert help. This is especially important when this symptom develops during the middle age period. In many cases relief can be given and it is not sensible for the patient to go on experiencing such recurrent discomfort when medical help may be capable of returning the menses to normal.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large

Before the Magistrate

Ten persons and one company were penalised by Magistrate Harold L. Hawe, K.C., Thursday afternoon for breaches of the Highway and Vehicle Traffic Act.

Steven J. Iwaskow, Edmonton, pleaded guilty to dangerous driving and was fined $15, or 30 days. Three drivers, Peter Keller, Gerald E. Clarke and Norman E. Paterson, all of Edmonton, who operated their respective vehicles at more than 40 miles an hour, were assessed a similar amount.

Three operators of public service vehicles were penalized to the extent of $10, or 15 days, for driving at more than 30 miles an hour. They were William H. Simmonds of Vermilion; Thorvald Christiansen of Ponoka, and Donald K. Montgomery of Calgary.

Dench of Canada, entering a plea of guilty to a charge of not having a truck equipped with clearance lights, was fined $5, or seven days. Similar penalties were handed out to William E. Baker, St. Albert trail, Stan Barton and William J. Armstrong of Edmonton for other infringements of the Vehicle Act.

Marie Anderson, or Mrs. Anton, pleaded guilty to bigamy before Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., Friday morning, and said she had not known whether or not her first husband was alive when she re-married. She had not tried to find out. She told the registrar, when the second marriage application was made, that she was single.

A RCMP officer told of the accused meeting and marrying her first husband in 1937. The husband soon after the marriage was sentenced to a jail term and she did not meet him again until 1939, when they went to Kelowna, B.C. They lived there only a short time before the husband was picked up, tried and sentenced to 13 months for theft.

Returning to Edmonton, the accused lived in the Beverly district, where she met and married her second husband. The case was remanded for one week while investigations are made. Bail was set at $1,000.

Charles Henke pleaded guilty to theft of about $50 worth of grain from a North Edmonton elevator company, and was fined $25 or 35 days. Restitution had been made. Accused admitted to police having taken the grain from the elevator, where he had been employed, to feed his chickens.

Harry N. Rizen of Warwick was fined $25 or 35 days, while his right to drive anywhere in the Dominion was cancelled for four months, after he had pleaded guilty to dangerous driving. When police tested the car, it was found the brakes were in "very bad condition."

Frank Risley and Charles Allan, both of Vancouver, were placed on 12 months' suspended sentence on their charges of vagrancy, to enable them to "get out of Edmonton and not be seen around here by tomorrow morning." Each was placed on his own recognizance of $500.

Holger Lilydahl was trying to "pick a fight" on a business street, Thursday, when Detective Ernest Foster came along. The latter watched Holger, he told the court, and when the former, charge with intoxication, tried to get the detective to "tangle with him", he came off second best. He was fined $25 or 35 days.

Joe Emrick, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a child, was sentenced to 15 months imprisonment.

Plan Closer Link With Tito's Forces

By JOSEPH MORTON

MARSHAL TITO'S HEADQUARTERS in YUGOSLAVIA, Aug. 22—(Delayed)—(AP)—Plans for much closer co-ordination of military operations by Allied forces in Italy and the National Army of Liberation in Yugoslavia were worked out at the recent conferences of Prime Minister Churchill, Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson and himself, Marshal Tito said yesterday.

Joint operations by British and American ground troops and the Partisan Army may be expected on a growing scale in the near future, he said.

Noting that detachments from the three forces had carried out several actions together on the Dalmatian coast, he said the necessity for secrecy forbade a more detailed discussion of plans.

Former Minister Bombing Leader Of Air Squadron

WITH THE RCAF IN ITALY, Aug. 25—(CP)—FO. William Craven, a ginger-haired flying parson from Big River, Sask., has been appointed bombing leader of a squadron of Halifaxes, the RCAF announced last night.

Before joining the RCAF, "The Bish", as he is known to his squadron mates, was pastor of a missionary parish in far northern Saskatchewan, consisting largely of Indians and a minority of white settlers.

Craven was in the western desert before coming to Italy. Flying in Halifaxes and Liberators he has bombed targets from the Aegean to France, but claims he has never had an exciting moment in the air.

"Dullest job in the world," he said.

Dominion Plans To Sell Property At Vermilion

Installations by the Dominion government on property of the provincial school of agriculture at Vermilion have been turned over to the War Assets Corporation, a crown company, for disposal, according to Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works. They are estimated to be worth $100,000.

The school of agriculture was turned over to the Dominion government in 1941 for use as a CWAC basic training centre. The contract between the province and Ottawa stipulated the property was to be returned in the same shape and state of repair as existed at time of transfer. The CWAC vacated the school on May 15 last.

Among structures built by the Dominion on the property are $30,000 worth of small huts, and a $60,000 pavilion, and other minor installations.

Future use of the Vermilion property has not been decided as yet. It has been proposed that the Dominion might use it as a convalescent home and rehabilitation centre for returned men, but nothing has been announced definitely. The question will receive consideration at a proposed meeting between provincial government officers and representatives of the Dominion government real estate administration.

Britain Reopens Invasion Coast To the Public

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(CP)—The war office announced last night that the last stretch of the English "invasion coast" on the east and southeastern sides of the island would be reopened to the public.

The army still is in control along the shore, however, and the war office warned the public there still was danger of robot bombs coming over the coast.

The British information services in New York emphasized the warning, saying flying bomb salvos had reached such a pitch that 17,000 homes were being destroyed or damaged by them every 24 hours.

Lacombe Farmers Expect Good Crops

LACOMBE.—Farmers in the Lacombe district expect to harvest a good crop, with the average in wheat probably running between 35 and 40 bushels to the acre. Indications are that oats will average between 65 and 75 bushels to the acre. Although some of the crop has been beaten down by the heavy rains which have fallen in the district for the last two months, it is not thought that more than 10 per cent of the grain will be lodged. Warm weather is needed, however, to fully ripen the grain crops in this area. Labor is expected to be scarce in this district when harvest time arrives.
